RABBIT BLISTERS

SOMETIMES WHEN A HUNTER DRESSES A HEALTHY LOOKING RABBIT, HE MAY FIND FLUID-FILLED CYSTS THAT RESEMBLE BLISTERS BETWEEN ITS SKIN AND FLESH AND IN THE ABDOMINAL CAVITY. CYSTS ARE A TYPE OF TAPEWORM LARVAE, FOUND ALSO IN DOGS, THAT DO NOT AFFECT HUMANS. DRESSING REMOVES THEM AND THE ADULT PARASITE FOUND IN INTESTINES. THEY ARE NEVER IN THE MEAT!

SUCH RABBITS ARE SAFE, AND AS TASTY AS ANY. DON'T TOSS 'EM AWAY IF YOU LIKE RABBIT.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

A few hands before this one Mr. New had been soundly lectured on the importance of covering honors. He remembered this lesson too well.

Miss Brash bid her head off to reach three no trump in today's deal. The opening lead was a low diamond and, with the queen trapped, the defenders rattled off the first four tricks in that suit. On the last diamond Miss Brash discarded the four of hearts from her hand and the six of hearts from dummy. Mr. New parted with the five of spades.

Miss Brash

At trick five Mrs. Keen led the jack of hearts. Dummy's ace won and Miss Brash stopped for a moment to figure her best chance for nine tricks. She was doing more worrying than thinking as she had no choice of plays. Either the clubs had to lie very favorably or one of the opponents had to make some kind of horrible error.

If Mr. New held the king and three small clubs, leaving his partner the doubleton ten, the lead of the queen from dummy would develop four club tricks. If Mr. New covered the queen the ace would win and now dummy's jack would drop the ten, making the other two clubs in the closed hand good.

If Mr. New refused to cover, the queen would win. The jack could then be led. That would drop Mrs. Keen's 10 and again four club tricks would be available whether Mr. New covered with the king or not.

Another favorable club distribution for Miss Brash would be the lone 10 on her left and five to the king on her right. As it happened, the opposing clubs were divided 3-3 and correct defense would beat the contract.

Hoping for the best, Miss Brash led the queen of clubs at trick six. Mr. New promptly covered with the king and the defense went dead at that moment. Miss Brash won with the ace and led the nine, finessing it when Mrs. Keen played low. The nine held and the jack cleared the suit.

Why should Mr. New refuse to cover the queen of clubs in this case? Remember this principle: When one of two touching honors is led by declarer, it is almost never a winning play to cover the first time. If Mr. New had ducked the first club lead in this deal, the queen would win. But then Miss Brash would be stymied.

If she next led the four from dummy, Mr. New could play low again and it would take the ace from the closed hand to prevent the 10 from winning. If she led the jack, Mr. New could cover, forcing out the ace and making his partner's 10 a winner.
