Women want sensible shoes notes trade commissioner

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER. (CP) — Many women, after all, are sensible about their footwear.

At least, the reaction of many women to the United Kingdom exhibit at the British Columbia International Trade Fair has convinced J. C. W. Trevor of the U.K. trade commission that this is so.

"I wouldn't have believed it before this show," he said. "I know I haven't been able to convince my wife that these stiletto heels are silly."

He suggested it may be the sellers, at least in part, who are to blame for the spike-like heel and knife sharp pointed toe which some contend is ruining women's feet for the sake of fashion.

Mr. Trevor showed a reporter a display of women's shoes at the U.K. exhibit there. It included a pair of plain brown leather walking shoes, flat-heeled and round-toed.

"We've had all sorts of women come to us," said Mr. Trevor, "and say: 'There's a sensible shoe. Where can I buy those?'

"We've checked with retail dealers in Vancouver who handle the manufacturer's line and we've found they've ordered in men's footwear from this company, but none of the women's shoes.

"The shopkeepers say there's been no demand for this type of shoe, but we've had quite a demand shown here."
