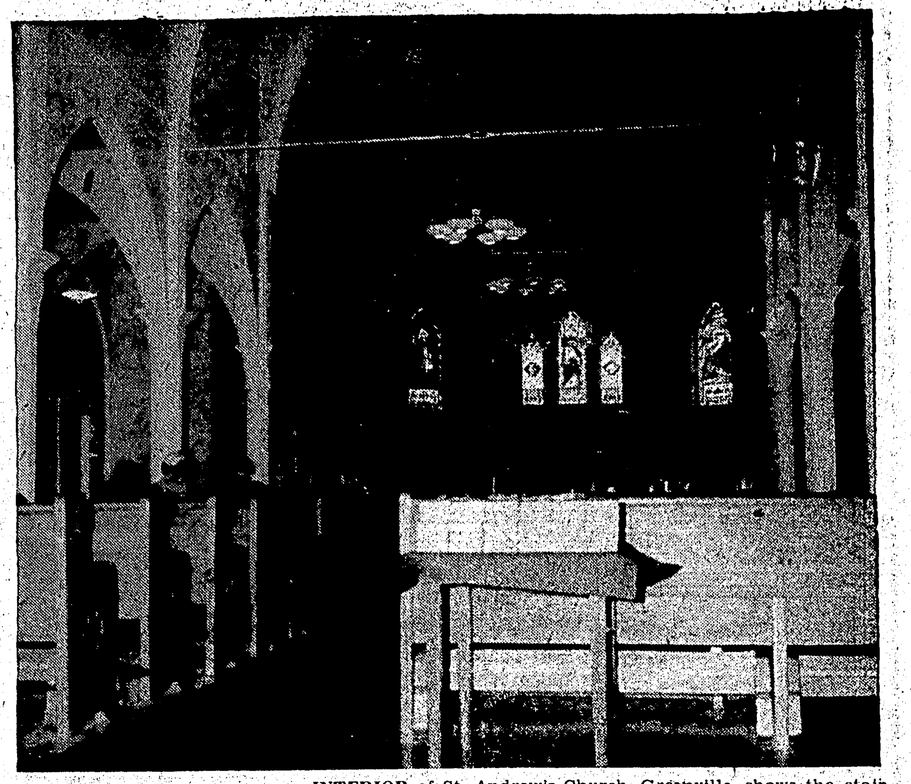
CHIEF COUNCILLOR William D. McKay and Archdeacon C. A. Hinchliffe confer inside the newly dedicated St. Andrew's Church of Greenville.

READY to board Pacific Western Airlines for the dedication of St. Andrew's church at Greenville on the Nass River, 80 miles north of Prince Rupert, are Herbert Waldbauer, in the background Fred Conrad, Eric Faure, Mrs. Arthur Ogilvie and Dean Pattison of Caledonia.



INTERIOR of St. Andrew's Church, Greenville, shows the stain designed glass windows and the hand carved designs. The modern light fixtures graduate in size from six units in each fixture in the main part of the church to 12 units over the altar. Carpeting is red with black outlines and the kneeling pads are red. Huge "A" frames were set up to do the interior plastering. All the wood has been left its natural color, with clear finish to bring it out. —Photos by Gladys Baldwin.

THE CHOIR of St. Andrew's church ready to lead off the parade from the Church Army Hall up the main street of Greenville to the new church. On the right, by the Church Army Hall are the Very Rev. G. T. Pattison, Dean of Caledonia, The Venerable Archdeacon C. A. Hinchliffe and the Rt. Rev. E. G. Munn, Bishop of Caledonia.

GATHERED on the steps of St. Andrew's church, Greenville are the massed choirs of Christ Church, Kincolith, St. Peter's church Aiyansh and St. Andrew's own choir. Just about to begin the consecration ceremony the Rt. Rev. E. G. Munn, Bishop of Caledonia, stands in the centre surrounded by his chaplains. To the right are local and visiting hereditary chiefs.

Beautiful Greenville church dedicated

Henry H. McKay, missionary in charge of St. Andrew's concluded the speechmaking for the evening.

Frank Calder, public relations officer for the Improvement Association outlining the arrangements that had been made for the celebrations said the committee was grateful for the assistance of the Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., B.C. Packers, and the people of Kincolith and Aiyansh had rendered and many others who had helped to complete arrangements for transportation and necessities in billeting visitors.

One of the highlights of the four-day celebrations was the early Eastern morning parade of many of the village people.

The early Easter Parade has been a tradition in the village for more years than even the older residents remember and is traced back to the first Easter when the women asked "Where is Mary Magdalene."

The parade of worshippers goes up and down each street in the village, singing and is joined by as many of the villagers who are up and can be spared from other church duties. Members of Greenville band provide the music and many of the women carry tambourines.

At 10:30 Sunday morning, Holy Communion was held in the new church, with the Rt. Rev. E. G. Munn, Bishop of Caledonia officiating.

Musical programs were featured throughout the entire four day celebrations with the Greenville Concert Band performing at all the banquets.

CANTATA PRESENTED

Good Friday evening saw the presentation of the Easter Cantata, "Victory," by Henry Wildermere, by the St. Andrew's Church choir, all dressed in blue with white accessories.

The black and white robed choirs of Greenville and Aiyansh and the red and white choir of Kincolith each took turns in the choir stalls for the different services in the church over the Easter weekend.

Thirty young men of the Improvement Association, a service club, headed by Alvin A. McKay, were in charge of all programs, receptions, transportation and billeting, a project which took more than a year to plan.

Nights of preparation with very little sleep was the lot of the women of the village who prepared all the food and served it at the various banquets in the tastefully decorated Community Hall.

Asked after the banquet how long it would take them to clear up, they said:

"We'll be here all night getting ready for tomorrow's banquet." All the teenagers in the village were pressed into service as baby sitters.

LONG GUEST LIST

Arriving off and on during the weekend were officials from B.C. Packers Ltd., Nelson Brothers Ltd., the United Fishermen and Allied Worker's Union, Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., RCMP, City of Prince Rupert, Indian Departments of the Skeena and Nass agencies, teachers from Terrace, Kitimat, Prince Rupert, Kincolith, Aiyansh and Canyon City.

TREMENDOUS WORK

Village societies whose members carried out the exhaustive arrangements were—The Athletic Club, Greenville Concert Band, Village Council, Improvement Association, Parent-Teacher association, St. Andrew's Church Guild, Church Army, Native Brotherhood of B.C., Native Sisterhood, plus auxiliarys for nearly every organization.

Hereditary chiefs taking part in the events of the four days were Walter McMillan, Titus Niskyok, Michael Bright, Herbert McMillan, Frank Tait and Steven Ell all of Aiyansh; Herbert Doolan, Arthur Nelson, Francis Watts, Jeffrey Benson and W. H. Stevens of Kincolith; Henry Azhk of Canyon City; Peter Calder, Charles Leeson, George Martin, Samuel Tait, Henry H. McKay, J. H. Clark and Simon McKay of Greenville.

OTTAWA (CP) — Roadblock tactics being employed by CCF members against divorce bills were successful again Tuesday for the fourth straight Commons private members' hour, no divorce bill was passed.

Frank Howard (CCF-Skeena) and Arnold Peters (CCF-Timiskaming) "talked out" the bill that was up for debate during the last hour of the afternoon sitting. The Commons now faces a backlog of 265 divorce bills already approved by the Senate.

Film "Misfits" begun by Millers, Taylors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—it all started with an afternoon outing with the Taylors and the Millers.

The Taylors—four boys, book editor Frank Taylor and his wife—dropped by at the Connecticut home of Arthur Miller, his two children and his wife. He's the playwright, she acts in the movies.

As Taylor recalls it: "Arthur was telling us a story. He and Robert Penn Warren are the best story tellers I know, and we were all enthralled. When he finished, I said it was great but what was it—a play, a novel or what?

"He said it was a screen play and he had it in the next room. Would I like to read it? I said certainly."

WILD ABOUT IT

Taylor read it, loved it, said it could only be directed by John Huston. Miller agreed, but was shy about sending it to Huston. Taylor urged him, and two days later Huston cabled from Paris that he was wild about the script and wanted to do it.

That was last summer. A few months ago, Taylor ran into his old friend Miller. The deal was still on, but they lacked a producer. Said Miller: "Why don't you do it?"

Taylor backed off. He had spent four years at MGM, making only one picture and had returned to the book business. But he gave in, and now will be leading a stellar safari to Reno.

Among the bushbeaters will be Miller, Huston, Clark Gable, Mrs. Miller, also known as Marilyn Monroe, Montgomery Clift, Eli Wallach and Thelma Ritter. They are all pitching in to make a movie called "The Misfits."
