Opening lead: King of ♥

A slight slip in timing proved fatal to declarer's slam effort today.

South's rebid of three clubs designates a strong hand valued at 17 points and upwards.

This is accepted procedure when opener shows a new suit at this level, particularly where it has not been demonstrated that a "fit" exists. North can safely temporize by giving a mere preference to three spades, for there is no fear that the bidding will suddenly drop. If he had a mediocre hand he would have raised spades directly in preference to showing a suit of his own. South carried on to game in spades and North considered that it was high time ot stop dilly-dallying, so he contracted for slam.

West opened the king of hearts and, when the dummy was spread, it appeared to declarer that he could take all the tricks provided that the queen of clubs could be picked up. At trick two a club was led to the ace to test the suit. This appeared at the time to be a routine safety play to guard against a singleton queen, but South was soon to regret this move.

A spade was led to the queen and, when East showed out, complications had begun to set in, for West was now revealed to have a trump trick. A club was returned and the ten was finessed when East played low. West ruffed with the four of spades and carefully refrained from trying to cash a heart trick. Instead he shifted to a diamond to drive out dummy's side entry and wreck declarer's chances. Though South could draw trumps in his own hand he had no means of getting to dummy to repeat the club finesse.

The correct technique on the hand was to cash one round of trumps early. If everyone follows, declarer can afford to cash a high club to test that suit. However, when East fails to answer the call for trumps, South must revise his plans. Since spades break very badly, it becomes apparent that clubs are not apt to divide favorably either, and that East figures to have length in that suit. Declarer is obliged to take a first round finesse in clubs so that, when West ruffs in on the second finesse, the suit becomes established and South can claim his contract after drawing trumps.
