OLD LAND WOMEN TO COUNTRY

Farmers and Gardeners of Gentler Sex on Increase in England

(By Mollie McGee)

LONDON, July 23: (CP)—Feeding the cows and raking the hay is becoming women's work in England. Women farmers are on the increase according to officials of the Royal Agricultural Society.

Usual modern method is for two women in partnership to run the farm. They are not new at the job however. Many receive their training on large estates and work their apprenticeship in exchange for food and lodging. Others attend agricultural colleges.

Country jobs that have particular appeal are dairy work, butter-making, cheese-making, stock work and milking. Women gardeners are wanted for private gardens and for the gardens of large institutions. To be head gardener at a girls' school or women's college is considered quite a woman's job and many trained women are employed to assist in horticultural nursery work. According to the Women's Farm and Garden Association, the remand for experienced women in various branches of outdoor work far exceeds the supply.

Would Try Housework

Perhaps as encouragement to women to stay in the kitchen and not wander outdoors, the Dowager Marchioness of Reading told of her repressed desire to be a housemaid. She was speaking at a meeting of the Society for Oversea Settlement of British Women.

She is the only woman on the board of this Society with 10 men. In her short address she said definitely that if she were young again she would certainly emigrate to one of the Dominions and what is more would not mind what kind of job she had to take to begin with. "I wouldn't try to be a cook, because I can't cook," she said, "but I would make an excellent housemaid."

Miss Edith Thompson, chairman of the executive committee, told of a constant demand for qualified teachers, hospital nurses, governesses and children's nurses in both Australia and South Africa, where the settlement scheme under the guardianship of this association is well under way. A limited number of secretaries, hotel receptionists, hairdressers and dressmakers are promised jobs on arrival.

Married Want Chance

With emigration offering such inducements, a deputation representing 20 women's organizations called at the London County Council headquarters and asked that the marriage bar for women employees be abolished. The reason given for this request was that depriving a woman of her job merely because she marries is anti-social and has a tendency towards later marriages and smaller families.

On of the claims made was that it is in the interests of the community that women should be allowed to do work for which they are trained, regardless of whether they are married or not.

The idea behind the deputation was that the L. C. C. should set an example in this way to the government. Recently they made a ruling allowing married nurses to retain their positions owing to the shortage of hospital staff.

Leading the Band

It is still unusual in this country to see a woman conducting an open-air orchestra. But Canadian visitors to London will have the opportunity this summer. Miss Avril Coleridge-Taylor, who is the first woman to conduct a band in Hyde Park, will be busy.

Probably Miss Coleridge-Taylor is the first woman in England to tackle such heavy jobs as the conducting of municipal orchestras or military bands. She started off on this career by accident. She went to a seaside resort to supervise the rehearsal of her compositions, took the baton for a moment and conducted so well the conductor invited her down to take his place on the day of the concert.

With such women in the limelight there is little wonder that a prominent preacher, Rev. C. B. Canning, came out with a much-quoted passage in a recent public address: "There is a strong temptation for men to comment mournfully on the approaching end of the male dynasty. Dorothy Sayers, Laura Knight and Greta Garbo have stolen all our thunder and there is no object that gives men so abiding a sense of guilt as a woman policeman."

Yet the metropolitan police have had great difficulty in recruiting women for the police force. The uniform is not becoming, the boots in particular make the women officers' feet look double their size. Within the last month, however two romances have blossomed into matrimony in the force and two couples of police constables have marched to the wedding march. Well publicized, such announcements should assist in recruiting.

Sockeye Fishing Much Improved On Skeena—Heaviest Week of Halibut Landings—Great Hatch of Kamloops Trout

With fine weather resulting in a definite improvement in the run of sockeye salmon on the Skeena River, the probability is that the pack in this area may reach a larger amount during the latter part of July and possibly come up to last year's volume after having lagged owing to light fishing immediately after the opening of the season. Unless some changed conditions should warrant otherwise, it is expected fishing with sockeye nets will be closed about the usual time around the middle of August. Although it has been disappointing to some, the volume of sockeye this year is no less than some of the more conservative observers of the fisheries had expected. During the past week boats on the Skeena River were averaging thirty-five fish, those on the Naas twenty-five, and at Rivers Inlet seventy. Pinks have not yet shown up in sufficient quantity to warrant seining but are expected to soon.

Due no doubt to the suspension of lay-over periods between trips and with fishing becoming more intensive immediately prior to the closing of the season for Area No. 2 next Friday, Prince Rupert has just had its heaviest week of halibut landings so far this season with fares totalling 804,000 pounds of which 441,500 pounds was fifrom Canadian boats and 362,500 pounds from American. Despite the weight of landings, prices stood up well. The high bid of the week for Canadian fish was 8.1 cents and 5 cents which the Embla received for 18,000 pounds and the low 6.5 cents and 5 cents which many of the boats were paid. For American fish the high price of the week was 9.1 cents and 6 cents received by the Zarembo for 18,000 pounds and the low 7.5 cents and 6 cents paid the California, Foremost and Yukon for 20,000 pounds, 40,000 pounds and 25,000 pounds respectively.

One hundred thousand Kamloops trout eggs brought to Prince Rupert for planting purposes have shown a highly satisfactory hatch of better than ninety-five per cent. At the government wharf, where a hatchery was installed to handle them, the fry are now healthy, lively and ready to be removed next week to Prudhomme Lake near Prince Rupert for liberation under the restocking program of the Prince Rupert Rod and Gun Club.

Two oats Chartered

The Armour Salvage Co. has chartered its two service boats Pachena and Daly to the B. C. Packers for seine fish packing, the former going to Namu and the latter to Shannon Bay in Massett Inlet.

The run of red salmon on the British Columbia coast is slightly better this year than it was last, said Major J. A. Motherwell, chief supervisor of fisheries, yesterday as he went south aboard the patrol steamer Malaspina after a trip to Ketchikan. Major Motherwell said that forty-two canneries were operating on the coast this year.

Seven boats sold halibut catches totalling 66,000 pounds at Seattle yesterday at prices ranging from 7½c to 10c.

The halibut boat Chancellor which landed 15,000 pounds at Seattle yesterday, had engine trouble on her last trip to the fishing grounds. Engine bearings burned out on the Goose Island banks and the vessel was towed by the Pioneer III, another halibutter, to Alert Bay, where temporary repairs were effected after which the vessel proceeded to Seattle under her own power.

Corp. Harold Raybone, who was transferred last week to Victoria after having been for some years skipper of the provincial police boat P. M. L. 8 here, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. He takes command of a new police boat at Victoria. Constable E. E. Kinney, who succeeds Sergeant Raybone on the P. M. L. 8 arrived here last evening on the Princess Adelaide from Port Alberni.

Having spent the night in the Skeena River discharging at cannery points, Union steamer Cardena, Capt. John Boden, arrived in port at 8:25 this morning from the south, sailing a couple of hours later on her return to Vancouver and waypoints. The Cardena had fifty passengers on board.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Charlotte, Capt. William Palmer, is due in port at 3:30 this afternoon from Skagway and other northern points and will sail at 5 p.m. for Vancouver.
