BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Defending against an expert declarer, it very seldom pays to base your defense on the assumption that he has made an error or has failed to count the cards correctly.

In this deal Mr. Muzzy thought he had finally caught his chief tormentor, Mr. Champion, in an error. Against the optimistic slam contract Mr. Abel opened the king of diamonds. Mr. Champion won with his lone ace and stopped to figure out his best line of play. He had 11 tricks off the top and as he saw it, there were four chances for the 12th trick.

Mr. Champion

If the opposing trumps were divided 2-2, he could pick them up and still have a trump in dummy to ruff his fourth club. If the clubs were divided 3-3 he could win four straight club tricks. If diamonds were divided favorably, dummy's fifth diamond could be set up for a trick. Finally, one of the defenders might make an error. Only one of these alternatives developed—the last one.

Mr. Champion first tried the diamond suit. He overtook the king of hearts with dummy's ace, returned a diamond and ruffed it high. He led a low heart to dummy's seven and noted the spade discard on his left. He returned another diamond and ruffed it. Here Mr. Abel discarded a low club and at this point, two of the four chances were gone—neither red suit had broken evenly.

Now the only hope seemed to be that Mr. Muzzy would have to follow suit to three leads of clubs. If so, the fourth club could either be ruffed in dummy or, if the suit broke 3-3, it would set up automatically.

So Mr. Champion led a low club to dummy's king. He was about to continue with the queen when it occurred to him that the lead of the deuce might offer the best chance of realizing his fourth alternative. He led the deuce and Mr. Muzzy triumpantly ruffed.

"What a day," Mr. Muzzy crowed. "The day the great Champion forgot to count trumps."

Mr. Champion pointed out that if he had picked up the last trump he would have lost a club and a spade. He then claimed the rest of the tricks, explaining that he could win any return, lead to dummy's queen of clubs, return to his hand by ruffing a diamond and discard dummy's losing spade on the ace of clubs.

Gas storage planned

TORONTO (CP) — Imperial Oil Ltd. said recently it is studying the possibility of storing natural gas from Western Canada in depleted gas fields in southwestern Ontario and is discussing the subject with other members of the natural gas industry.

Such a storage plan, Imperial added, would help to level out pipeline throughputs during periods of heavy and light demand.

Until studies are completed, it is impossible to estimate the cost of such a project, the company said.

Review too late

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's chief law enforcement officer said Thursday he is reviewing the case of a Londoner hanged 11 years ago to see whether there had been a miscarriage of justice.

This announcement by Home Secretary R. A. Butler was on the case of Timothy Evans, convicted of killing his baby daughter.

SELF AID FOR ICE BREAKERS

IT IS THE UNFAMILIAR OR CARELESS PERSON WHO USUALLY FALLS THROUGH THIN OR "ROTTEN" ICE, BUT IT'S WISE FOR ALL TO KNOW HOW TO RESCUE THEMSELVES IF HELP ISN'T CLOSE BY.

HOLD ONTO THIN ICE WITH ONE HAND AND BREAK WEAK EDGES WITH THE OTHER UNTIL STRONG ICE IS REACHED. THEN EXTEND BOTH ARMS OVER ICE AND KICK LEGS NEAR SURFACE TO FORCE BODY ONTO THE ICE. WHEN HIPS ARE OUT, ROLL SIDEWISE FROM THE HOLE.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A New-Zealand-born nurse who lived here for 49 years before she died in 1960 has left her entire $259,000 estate to the University of B.C. medical school and the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

The bequests were made by Mrs. Florence Evelina Heighway, who died August 20 last year. Her husband, George C. Heighway, has waived rights to a life interest left to him.

No decision on Sam

NEW YORK (CP) — Pete Rozelle, National Football League commissioner, said Thursday night he has not yet approved a contract for quarterback Sam Etcheverry to play with St. Louis Cardinals. Rozelle said he hoped to review Etcheverry's case with the NFL's lawyer shortly and he might be in a position to make an announcement next week.
