June Carr Wed Here Saturday

A quiet wedding of local interest took place on Saturday afternoon at Bishop's Lodge when, in the presence of family members, Miss June Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Carr, of Smithers, was joined in matrimony to Harold Bunn, son of Mrs. H. Doiron, of Vancouver. Rev. Father W. F. Lantagne officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of blue sheer with a corsage of pink carnations and rose buds and had a blue veil fastened with pink carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. J. P. Carr, sister-in-law of the bride. She wore a floor length gown of blue taffeta with a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. H. A. Dodd at which many friends offered their felicitations to the happy couple. Receiving the guests were Mrs. Dodd, Mrs. J. N. Carr, and Miss Emily Christopher.

Mr. and Mrs. Bunn expect to leave for Vancouver shortly.

Paris was the largest city in the world for 1,000 years.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT

Some persons are born to adventure, some achieve adventure while still others have adventure thrust upon them. Take for instance the other night when, with a group of the "Y" party entertainers, I went out to one of the forts! I went in the capacity of wardrobe mistress to Leading Airwoman Marge Rigate, the singer of the troupe. We went into the recreation hut filled with eagerly expectant men. Opening with a sing-song, the concert got well away. They like Marge in her pretty evening gown. They applauded Red Snyder's songs and they roared at Chester Le Maistre's French Canadian jokes.

Everything was going lovely. Then Jack (Knock 'em-in-the-aisles) McClelland got up to do his number. It was an elegant little thing called "You'd be Surprised" Jacks costume for this song is a thing of wonder. He loons the complete simpleton. He had just intoned the lines "I'm no good in a crowd but, when we're alone—you'd be surprised" when he looked up and he was alone! And he was surprised! As he said later, he knew his act S— Well, anyhow that it was odoriferous but he didn't know it would do that to the audience. For it seems that one of these funny alerts they have a way of having in the army was had and right in the middle of Jack's act too. So without a by your leave the army had vanished leaving us sitting around the stove for an hour or two with a subdued Colman lamp flickering long shadows against the walls. Later when the alert was over, the boys trooped in for the next spasm. Marge sang again, Chester told funny stories, Don Adams and Chester Le Maistre gave their funny Chinese wood-chopper skit and Jack came on again this time with his famous, and equally infamous. 'Lady Taking a Bath pantomine. He had the water just nicely in the bath and had removed one stocking when—ping!—you guessed it another alert. This time he emptied the hall in one minute flat. It was to much. Jack (sop-the-show) McLelland knew when he was licked. We all went home.

XMAS IN CHURCHES

Special Sermons and Music — Attendance Hampered by Prevailing Illness.

Special Christmas services marked the day in several Prince Rupert churches yesterday. Chancels and auditoriums were beautifully decorated with Yuletide flowers and foliage in the traditional red and green. Ministers gave sermons appropriate to the occasion and Yuletide music was furnished by the choirs — junior choirs in the morning and senior in the evening. Next Sunday there will also be special Christmas services in some of the churches.

Prevailing illness kept down the size of the congregations in most of the churches.
