HUMAN SUFFERING IS GREATER THAN EVER Now!

GIVE — as you never gave before

More money for the Red Cross? Yes! Suffering was bad enough last year. This year the war is on a wider and grimmer scale—and more is yet to come.

If there was ever a need for the utmost you can give in working dollars to relieve human suffering—it is NOW.

Your Past Support of the Canadian Red Cross has brought succour and solace to prisoners of war, bomb victims, refugees, men in training and in battle. Today—the need is spreading. Will it be met? It dedends on YOU!

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT
The Hostess

During the last war there were many very lovely poems written, the most famous of which, of course, was "Flanders Fields." I have not a copy of it handy and would appreciate it if someone were to send me one as it could well reappear in this column. In this war there has been a dearth of such poetry, probably because the young people fighting this one are looking at it with cynical eyes, seeing that it is the second one in twenty-five years. However, one written by a nineteen-year-old American volunteer with the Royal Canadian Air Force, who was killed in action on December 11, 1941, is filled with such reality of emotion and the spirit of its generation that it bears reprinting at intervals:

HIGH FLIGHT

Oh, I have slipped the surly bonds of earth,
And danced the skies on laughter silvered wings;
Sunward I've climbed and joined the tumbling mirth
Of sun-split clouds—and done a hundred things
You have not dreamed of—wheeled and soared and swung
High in the sunlit silence. Hov'ring there,
I've chased the shouting wind along and flung
My eager craft through footless halls of air.
Up, up the long delicious, burning blue
I've topped the wind-swept heights with easy grace,
Where never lark, or even eagle, flew;
And, while with silent, lifting mind I've trod
The high untrespassed sanctity of space,
Put out my hand, and touched the face of God.

—John Gillespie Magge, Jr. in N.Y. Herald-Tribune.

Red Cross News

Prepared for Disaster

If British Columbia should be bombed or suffer any other disaster, the Red Cross Disaster Relief Committee is in a better state of organization and preparedness than ever before. The 16 sub-depots containing hospital and surgical supplies, 25-bed emergency hospital units, mobile surgical units and civilian clothing, are so placed throughout the province that they could assist any area within a few hours. The total value of Red Cross disaster relief supplies and equipment now amounts to approximately $150,000, including nearly $50,000 of first-aid supplies, blankets and dressing distributed to the branches for local ARP first-aid posts.

Many Give Blood

British Columbians have given 9,493 donations of blood (approximately 1,190 gallons) in 1942 at the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic located at Vancouver. The Canadian Red Cross wants three tons of blood (12,000 donations a week) from Canadian men and women this year. The one Red Cross clinic in this province hopes to double its 1942 contribution.

Jam Overseas

The Red Cross has sent 40 tons of jam made last year by the women of B. C. to Britain. Since the Red Cross started the "Jam for Britain" project three years ago, it has sent more than a million pounds of jam overseas. B. C. has contributed more than one-fifth of this amount. It is the hope of the B. C. Red Cross to send 50 tons in 1943.

1942 Accomplishments

Reports of the accomplishments of B. C. Red Cross branches presented at the annual meeting last week prove that British Columbia has paid no mere "lip service" to the Society's great objectives: "the mitigation of suffering, improvement of health and prevention of disease." The total sum raised in this province in 1942 was $1,354,053, and of this $1,241,646 was spent.

Volunteers do Magnificent Job

The approximate 30,000 B.C. volunteer women Red Cross workers are doing a magnificent work. During 1942 they made 1,440,786 articles of every type of supply and comfort for hospitals, men and women in the services, and civilian war victims. Materials for these cost $221,897. It is estimated that the value of the finished comforts and clothing made by these workers is three times the cost of materials.

Red Cross Corps

Twenty places in British Columbia now have detachments of the Red Cross Corps, in which there are 999 active members, 110 in the active reserve, and 1,204 in the emergency reserve. Corps members have collected salvage, done office work, served at the Blood Donor Clinic, helped with food conservation and money-raising projects and many other activities. The Corps has supplied five VAD's for Canadian military hospitals and one for overseas service. The Red Cross also organized 170 home nursing classes, with 3,828 students.

C. F. P. Faulkner, assistant district engineer for federal department of public works, is leaving tonight for Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Victor Bloomstrom Dies in Smithers Hospital

SMITHERS, March 2—An old settler in the district passed away here last week when Victor Bloomstrom, who had a homestead on the high road about 15 miles from Smithers, died in the local hospital. Mr. Bloomstrom came to Canada from Finland many years ago.

One cousin, Mrs. John Fulsebakke of Telkwa, is the only relative that deceased had in this country.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon and was attended by his many friends throughout the district.
