Aquatot's dad becomes monk

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP) — Russell Tongay is out of prison and may be on his way to become a religious monk.

The former swimming instructor who once travelled the country with "aquatot" children completed his 10-year term for manslaughter, less time off for good behavior, and was released from the state prison March 31.

Tongay was convicted in the death of his five - year - old daughter as the result of a 33-foot high dive in 1953.

Two years ago Tongay said he planned to become a Trappist monk when he got out of prison. Upon his release he gave as a forwarding address a monastery at Lima, Calif.
