PRESBYTERIAN CLERGY URGES INTER-RACIAL ROYAL VOWS

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England (P) - A Presbyterian clergyman Monday urged the Queen to encourage her children to make inter-racial marriages.

This, said Rev. William H. Barbour, would set a Christian example and help solve the color bar. Writing in his parish magazine, the 47-year-old minister

"Christian people must not be unwilling to marry Chinese, Indians or Africans or we shall never solve the color problem. "It would be a wonderful help and inspiration if our Royal Family, who are themselves good Christians, would give a lead to us, their subjects, and fellow Christians. "It would make a wonderful difference if our Royal Family would themselves think about marrying colored people."
