COLD WEATHER FISHING TIPS

IN COLDEST WATERS FISH ARE LESS ACTIVE, BUT SOME FOOD IS NEEDED EACH DAY. NATURE SUPPLIES LESS FOOD AT THIS TIME AND FEEDING PERIODS ARE SHORT. NOON TO MIDAFTERNOON IS USUALLY BEST IN OPEN WATER FEED LANES (RIFFLES, EDDIES, ET CETERA).
WHERE LAW PERMITS MIDWINTER TROUT FISHING, USE BAIT (PALE, OR WHITE SALMON EGGS ARE TOPS!) OR LURES—EVEN DRY FLIES. FISH DEEP FOR PANFISH AND BASS, USING REGULAR LURES. SURFACE LURES TAKE "LUNKER" BASS IN DEEP SOUTH. CATFISHING IS POOR, STEELHEAD SALMON IS FINE, AS IS ICE-FISHING.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

When Mr. Meek looked at the North hand, he mentally conceded the rubber to his opponents. It was good news when his partner opened the bidding with a two bid, although he still didn't think it was possible for his side to make a game.

To open with a forcing two bid I have recommended that you have at least four defensive (quick) tricks and the ability to come within one trick of making game without help from partner.

Mr. Meek

It is difficult to count Mr. Dale's winners up to "within one trick of game." It is much easier to do that with the type of hand which contains one or more long, solid suits. Here Mr. Dale had no suit longer than four cards, so that any one of his three suits needs support, in length if not in high cards.

But even so the old master decided on opening his hand with a two bid because it contained so many honor cards that there were literally hundreds of combinations which he could find in his partner's hand which would make game possible—but on which partner would pass opposite a one bid.

For example three-no-trump would have a fine chance if Mr. Meek held: S 4 3 2, H J 2, D Q 10 3 2, C 4 3 2.

And with the following dummy, five clubs would be a laydown even if the club finesse lost: S 3 2, H 3 2, D 4 3 2, C 7 6 5 4 3 2.

Over Mr. Dale's three heart call Mr. Meek did well to bid four hearts rather than three no trump. He had no possibility of a stopper in the unbid suits and he realized the value of his four trumps, especially if Mr. Dale's hearts were only four long.

The defense won the first trick with the king of diamonds and continued the suit. Mr. Dale ruffed, laid down the ace of hearts, then cashed the ace and king of spades. He ruffed a third lead of spades in dummy, felling the queen. Next he took a club finesse and Mr. Abel won with the king and returned another diamond.

Again Mr. Dale ruffed, this time with the queen of hearts. He cashed his last heart, the king, leaving Mr. Masters with the good ten spot. Now he led the ten of spades, discarding the last diamond from the board. Then he ran the good clubs and the defenders could have their trump trick any time they wanted it. Their total, however, was a trump, a diamond and a club.
