TEEN-AGE BUSINESS-Gladys Lapierre displays some of the products made by teen-age companies in Windsor, Ont., under the Junior Achievements Incorporated plan. The plan, sponsored by industrial groups which send adult advisers to each miniature company, gives Canadian high school students practical experience in operating a business. More than 1,000 students in Vancouver, New Westminster, B.C., Calgary and Windsor are currently running 62 enterprises. Other cities are interested in establishing similar teen-age companies.
