Cardena Wears Peacetime Color

The peacetime atmosphere along the coast was bolstered today with the return of the Union steamship Cardena to her regular run garbed in a coat of fresh paint in pre-war colors. Fresh out of dry dock after her annual overhaul, the steamer Cardena, Capt. A. C. McLennan, arrived in Prince Rupert this morning proudly wearing her company colors after throwing off the anonymity bestowed by her six-year old coat of wartime gray. Old friends of the Cardena gladly greeted her as she returned to the harbor after three weeks absence—once more familiar in her black suit, white upper work and orange and black funnel. While she was in dry dock, the Cardena's run was taken over by the Venture. The Cardena arrived at 1:30 a.m. and sailed south on her return later in the morning.
