Anna May Wong starting first film in 17 years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When I die, my epitaph should be: I died a thousand deaths. That was the story of my film career. Most of the time I played in mystery and intrigue stories. They didn't know what to do with me at the end, so they killed me off."

The voice was Anna May Wong's. A soft, musical voice with an unmistakably Chinese tone, though she was born and reared in Los Angeles.

The face was as before—the large, heavy-lidded eyes, the high, rounded cheeks, the dark bangs over her forehead. Now starting her first feature film in 17 years, her beauty seems little changed from the days when she was caught up in the insidious plans of Dr. Fu Manchu.

"My last picture was 'Lady From Chungking,' one of those terrible wartime pictures," she recalled.

"After the war, I did nothing for about five years. It was one of those times people have in their lives when they must stop and find their direction. I managed an apartment house I owned in Santa Monica until it got too much for me.

"I had come to that transition when I had to change from leading roles to character parts. I think I have made it now. I have been doing television shows—even westerns like Wyatt Erp—and I find character roles are more fun."

Now she's having a career revival. She has played in a couple of "Adventures in Paradise" TV segments and may become a steady visitor. Now she's staging a film return as Lana Turner's housekeeper in "Portrait in Black." As always, she plays a woman of mystery.

ESKI By WILLIAM RITT

FOLLOWING the directions given by Mother Hubbard, Eski and Doc Dickery soon find themselves flying above a strange-appearing cottage which looks exactly like a shoe—and that's what it once was, a giant's shoe.

"LET'S NOT LAND," Eski suggests. "Let's just drop the gifts and fly away and not let the Old Lady's children see us! Then the children will think Santa Claus himself brought them their Christmas gifts!" Doc agrees to this.

DOC DICKERY takes over the controls of the Atomic Sleigh as Eski opens the floor hatch of the Sleigh. First Eski drops their cargo of candy all around the Shoe House. Candy canes, lollipops, all-day suckers, taffy sticks and gum drops rain down. Then, Eski showers down the gifts, toys of all kinds—the breakable ones carried by parachutes. There's even a beautiful big Christmas tree, all decorated and with lights. What a lovely sight—a sky full of toys! (To Be Continued)
