analysis, the public must pay for the standards of service it demands.

As to whether or not Mr. Fleming is correct in his estimate of the future tempo of business on this continent and throughout the free world, only time will tell. The reduction of taxation in Gerat Britain and the leading boost to home industries there came from the same world economic conditions which have made the going difficult for Canada. Low market prices for raw materials, tariff hikes in many countries and keener competition in all manufactured products have hit exporting countries such as Canada hardest and first. Mr. Fleming has budgeted with courage for the general trade improvement he believes will take place.

Blackwood on BRIDGE

A vital part of declarer's play is his handling of the trump suit. In many hands the defenders are successful in defeating the contract by attacking the trump bulwark. If they prevail in their attack, they can break the backbone of declarer's hand.

The bidding:

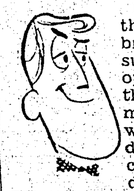
South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ♦
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Eight of diamonds.

Let's look at some of the various ways in which the defenders can attack declarer's trumps.

In today's deal it appears that Mr. Champion will have no difficulty in bringing home 10 tricks. What is he going to lose? With the opposing trumps divided 2-2 and the king on his right, it looks like he will have to lose only a heart and two diamonds.

Do you see how the defenders can possibly develop a fourth and deciding trick for the defeat of the contract?



Mr. Champion

Mr. Masters made the key play that broke the trump suit wide open. The opening lead was the eight of diamonds and he won with the king over dummy's queen. He cashed the ace of diamonds on which Mr. Abel played the trey.

At this point it was clear that the nine of diamonds was left in Mr. Champion's hand because if Mr. Abel had started with 9 8 3 in the suit, he would have led the nine at trick one.

Mr. Masters thought about what Mr. Champion could have had for his opening bid. He had no honor in diamonds. He undoubtedly had the ace of spades. He did not have any of the three top club honors. Therefore he had to have at least two of the three heart honors or he would have passed as dealer. On this reasoning it appeared hopeless to think about winning two heart tricks, although it was entirely possible that Mr. Abel could win one trick in that suit.

Summing up, Mr. Masters figured his side could win only three tricks outside of the trump suit and so it seemed imperative to find a way to spring the king of spades out of the trap it was in at the moment.

At trick three, he led another diamond. To make sure his partner trumped, he returned the deuuce. Mr. Champion played the nine and Mr. Abel ruffed with the four of spades. It took dummy's jack to win the trick.

After this play it was impossible for Mr. Champion to avoid the loss of a trump trick and since he always had a heart loser, the hand was down one.

districts now authorized will require the provincial government to provide an additional $835,938.

For the calendar year of 1959 Mr. Peterson said the total operating costs of education within the province would be an astronomical $91,348,572 for educating 285,829 pupils presently enrolled in public school.

The government pays $45,674,286 and a like amount will be raised by taxation in the school districts. Direct relief for local taxpayers is received by way of the provincial home-owner grants of $7,440,000.

Mr. Peterson expects school construction to continue at the rate of $15 to $20 million per year.

"As minister of education I am vitally interested that every child in this province receive the best elementary education possible," he said, "but I am concerned with the continuing upward spiral of education costs."

He continued, "For this reason I would urge alloschool boards to effect every reasonable economy in the administration of their districts in order to lessen the increasing burden of educational costs on the taxpayers."
