CRAZY MIXED-UP KID—It looks as though 13-year-old Diane Howe was frightened by a pretzel when she was a baby as she curls up at home in Wheaton, Md. An eighth-grader, she's been studying acrobatic dancing for four years and was born with a double arch back, making tricks like this easy, according to her mother.

Prosperity through foresight...

The fisheries have played a major role in the development of British Columbia. Important in furthering the progress of this province during the next hundred years is wise planning for the conservation of the Pacific salmon and other fishes.

The Salmon itself is a multi-million dollar industry, a vital export. It provides both food and sport, a living symbol of this Province.

The very plenitude of the Salmon often makes people take this magnificent fish for granted. But when streams become polluted or obstructed the fish die and fail to reach the spawning grounds, large salmon runs disappear—witness what happened to the sockeye salmon runs of the Fraser River, now happily restored.

Conservation is everybody's business. It should be the concern of people in high and low places, in industry, among fishing fleets and sportsmen, just as it is the concern of the Department of Fisheries of the Government of Canada. This is the surest way to assure plenty of salmon in the next century.

For interesting information about the salmon and other B.C. species write to the Department for free copies of "Fisheries Fact Sheets."
