Blackwood on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. New, the avid kibitzer, is better on the sidelines than he is in the game. To hear him talk, you would think he was one of the world's finest. He glibly discusses every play in the book—squeezes, end-plays, safety plays. But when the time comes to execute them, he seems to get lost in a maze of theories.

In today's deal Miss Brash opened the queen of spades which Mr. New won with the king. He cashed the ace of hearts and led a small heart toward dummy. Here he paused and unfortunately remembered what he knew about safety plays.

When you can afford it, the correct play with this combination of cards is to put in the ten on the second trump lead. That is the play Mr. New made.

If Miss Brash had started with four trumps to the queen-jack, the play would have saved a trick. If the ten lost to the jack or queen in Mr. Dale's hand, that would mean the trumps had broken favorably (3-2) and the king would pick up the last one.

Mr. New

All very well, except that Mr. New could not afford this precaution. Mr. Dale won the second trump lead with the jack of hearts. He returned a spade and dummy's ace won. Mr. New then cashed dummy's king of hearts, leaving just one trump in his hand and one trump on the board.

When the diamonds failed to break evenly, he had to ruff the fourth diamond to set up the fifth one. This took his last trump and there was nothing he could do about dummy's losing spade.

The correct play was mainly a matter of figuring the best percentage. The way Mr. New played the hand, the diamond suit was going to have to break 3-3.

The point is that a 4-2 diamond break was much more likely than a 4-1 heart break; or, to put it the other way, it was more likely that the hearts would break 3-2 than that the diamonds would break 3-3.

Therefore, if he wanted to play so safely, he should have figured that he would probably have to use one of his trumps to ruff a round of diamonds.

His best play, then, was to cash the two top trumps and leave the queen outstanding. He could then go about the business of setting up diamonds with two trumps left in his hand instead of one.

Hospital finances somewhat improved

Mr. Knight said that the hospital was getting along "pretty well" despite the shortage of nurses, mainly because there had not been too many patients in the hospital.

There were about 80 patients in the hospital and the hospital was staffed to handle 90.

APPLICATIONS FROM NURSES

The hospital was receiving applications for positions from nurses but was also losing several.

In other business, board chairman Dr. H. W. McDonald reported that the joint advisory committee had decided that at the next visit of one of the partners in the firm of radiologists that serves Prince Rupert General hospital, a meeting of the committee with him would be advisable, to discuss certain features of the present service. The board agreed.

The board also approved financial committee recommendations on supply tenders that:

Van's Bakery be given a contract for bread from August 1, 1959 to January 31, 1960; that Dicksen's Importing supply tea and Brooke Bond, coffee; that Norwest Refrigerated Foods be awarded contract for supplying milk, table cream, whipping cream, ice cream and cottage cheese.

PURCHASES APPROVED

Purchase of equipment for the hospital at a cost of $2,446.54 was approved by the board. Needed equipment included a lawnmower, a vacuum cleaner, two table lamps, an incubator for the nursery, a calculator, a croup tent, fire fighting equipment, floor polisher, ironing board, steam iron and a typewriter.

Of the total $2,446.54, BCHIS pays $815.51 in grants, leaving $1,631.03. The Women's auxiliary gift of the incubator and other donations total $715.08 for a net to the hospital of $915.95.

In new business board member E. A. Williamson was appointed to join the building and equipment committee. A representative will also be appointed from the medical staff to join the present committee composed of J. K. Shaw, chairman, R. W. James, Mrs. Carl Strand and administrator E. H. Knight.

LANDSCAPING DEFERRED

Mr. Shaw reported that a proposal by the Prince Rupert Garden club to landscape the front lawns of the hospital had been deferred until later in the year. He said the board would consider during the winter the possibility of building a fence around the area where gardens were proposed.

Mr. Williamson said a fence was not needed and it would not add to the beauty of the hospital. He said that if the press gave sufficient publicity to the fact that children and dogs should stay off the lawns, the hospital board wouldn't have to worry about what went on outside the hospital.

"We have to worry about the persons inside, not outside," he said.

Administrator E. H. Knight said a fence could not be considered until a decision on future renovations was made.

PERSONALS

E. A. Knight of Vancouver arrived today by Canadian Pacific Airlines to spend a few days visiting his son E. H. Knight administrator of Prince Rupert General Hospital. Father and son will leave by car at the beginning of next week when Mr. Knight Jr., leaves on his annual vacation.

Building loans

OTTAWA (CP)—Qualified Canadian builders may apply for direct Canadian house construction loans after July 27, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Thursday in announcing a resumption of last year's direct-loan program.

The prime minister's statement said it is hoped that 10,000 units wil be started this year as a result. The loans themselves—no total amount was given—will be made available September 1 and thep rogram will run through December.

Band leader George Liberace must pay his wife alimony of $500 a month pending her divorce suit. Mrs. Jayne Shields Liberace had asked for $1,135 monthly in her alimony request. She and the brother of piano player Liberace were married seven years ago and separated last month.
