BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Continuing our discussion of slam hands from the 1959 Italian-American match, here is deal Number 34, the next slam on which an important swing occurred.

Let us mercifully draw the curtain on the bidding of the American North-South pair, who failed to reach the spade slam, and turn our attention to the bidding of Siniscalco and Forquet of the Italian team. They were using the Neapolitan Club system.

An opening bid of a club in this system promises at least 17 high card points.

Therefore, North was barred from making that opening. An opening bid of one no trump is used on a hand that would normally be opened with a club. It shows a club suit, no second suit, and no singleton.

South's bid of two diamonds was artificial and required his partner to bid two hearts, with no alternative.

In this sequence, South may have a weak hand with either a long heart suit or a long spade suit. If his suit is hearts, he will simply pass his partner's two heart call. If it is spades, he will sign off with two spades.

However, with a strong hand and a good major suit, South will bid three hearts or three spades over his partner's forced two heart bid, depending on which major he has. So South's next bid in this deal was three spades.

This showed better than an opening bid and a spade suit that could stand up with only two-card support. Remember, the one no trump bidder was known to have no singleton.

Holding three aces, North now became definitely interested in a slam. His bid of four hearts could not be interpreted as showing a heart suit as his opening bid had denied possession of any biddable suit but clubs. It indicated a high spade honor and a heart "feature" — either the ace or the king-queen of hearts.

2 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	All Pass

South now bid four no trump. In this sequence, this was Blackwood. The Neapolitan Club bidders use natural responses to Blackwood, so North's bid of five spades showed three aces. This was all South needed to go to the spade slam.

Here we encounter the first of the control-finding bids which was found to be really useful in the Match. It turned out to be the Blackwood convention.

TIME TO WRITE

INVERCARGILL, N.Z. (P) — An aircraft brought more than 60,000 letters written by members of the expedition at New Zealand's Antarctic headquarters at Scott base during six months of the winter there. It averaged 300 letters per man.

INDOOR POOL

Civic Centre manager Jacob Vandenbrink.

Ronald Gilchrist, pool supervisor said he hoped to see many in the pool the following day.

Mr Gilchrist's wife former Lenora Fisher, Canadian swimming champion, was also introduced.

Representatives of service clubs were RCMP Constable L. A. Harrington for Kinsmen; Emile Blain for Gyro and J. R. McRae for Rotary.

Columbia Cellulose Company Ltd. mill manager John Guthrie, extended his firm's congratulations.

"I would like to thank all those members of our company who spent so much of their time voluntarily on this project," Mr. Guthrie said.

For a fitting climax, nine swimmers of all ages dived into the 155,000 gallons of water in the 75-foot by 37-foot pool.

The swimmers were Larry, Kenneth and Jeff Bowman, Jeannie Stewart, Harold Small, Dougie Small, Nelson Kenney, Trevor Harris and August Wallin.

Alderman T. Norton Youngs said today that he regretted inadvertently leaving out Miss Lis Pedersen, women's aquatic instructor and assistant pool supervisor when he introduced the swimming pool staff. He said that due to the pressure of the big occasion he not only forgot to introduce Miss Pedersen but also forgot to thank the Civic Band for turning out. He said he thanked band director Joseph Arduini and members of the band afterwards.
