Rumanian Situation Is Still Critical

CANADIANS LIST FEW CASUALTIES IN FIRST YEAR OF EUROPE WAR

Bright Spots in Review of Dominion's Effort as Compared With Early Part of 1914-18 Conflict

(This is one of a Canadian Press series dealing with the first year of the war in Europe and Canada.)

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press StaffWriter

OTTAWA, September 4: (CP)—While Nazi Germany over-ran Europe in the first year of war, there are bright spots in any Canadian review of the last 12 months. Canada's battle casualties totalled 42—seven dead and 35 wounded. In the first year of the First Great War, 3,369 Canadian were killed and 7,281 wounded. In 12 months Canada has laid the foundation for a great air force, expanded the navy as never before, recruited four divisions of troops and dispatched two of them overseas. Compulsory training for able-bodied men is on the program to start October 1.

Twenty-five years ago the Canadian war effort was accompanied by colorful bands, open-air recruiting rallies. There's been no such high-pressure recruiting this time.

Another marked difference between the two periods is in the matter of war purchase scandals. So far in the present war there has been scarcely a breath of suspicion of any patronage or profiteering although the purchases in Canada and construction contracts have run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

With only a fraction of that volume of buying concluded in 1915 the newspapers of July and August carried Davidson's Royal Commission investigating purchases of binoculars, horses and other field equipment.

Borden's Coalition

The First Great War had been in progress more than two years before the then prime minister, Sir Robert Borden, formed a coalition government to enforce conscription. Mr. King has so far rejected sporadic urgings from the Conservative opposition to form a national government. With more than 180 supporters in the House of Commons of 245 members, the Prime Minister has maintained that his party is sufficiently representative of all classes of people.

Canadian-American relations are closer by far than in 1915. There was no talk 25 years ago of a joint board for North American defence though the world wondered then, as now, what part the United States would play.

In July and August, 1915, Sir Robert Borden and R. B. Bennett, then a private member of the House of Commons, visited Canadian troops in England and France and Sir Sam Hughes, defence minister, spent some time overseas. Mr. Mackenzie King has visited the United States but not England though the late defence minister, Hon. Norman Rogers, and resources minister Crerar spent some time in England and France last winter.

Then, as now, Canadians were given the responsibility of defending Bermuda. The 38th Ottawa Battalion was leaving in August, 1915 to garrison Bermuda and the Duke of Cannaught, then governor-general, told they they were being honored with the task of defending "one of the most important naval bases in the Empire."

Grant Coverdale, formerly in the service of the Canadian National Railways here and more recently located in Vancouver, returned to the city on the Prince Rupert this morning and will again be stationed in Prince Rupert.

Following the drill, the unit marched to the Canadian Legion rooms where Sergeant Major Parsonage gave another in his series of lectures on map reading.

Cabinet Resigns As Life Of King Carol Is Being Threatened

Anarchy is Rife Throughout Country—Much Will Depend, it is Believed, on What Army Does—Cession of Transylvania Unpopular

BUCHAREST, Rumania, September 4: (CP)—Premier Ion Girgutu of Rumania resigned today and General Ion Antonescu was given the task of forming a new cabinet. King Carol, his safety threatened by an alleged Iron Guard plot, strove under martial law to stamp out anarchy. However, the long arm of the police was partially paralyzed by nation-wide railway strikes in demonstration against against the German-Italian dictated cession of Transylvania to Hungary. The great question, apparently, was whether the Army would remain faithful. Four high Rumanian generals are reported under arrest and three divisions of troops have revolted in protest against the session.

Palace guards last night frustrated a plot to assassinate King Carol. Seven shots were fired through Palace windows by unidentified gunmen.

The situation is further complicated by the signing of a trade agreement between Russia and Hungary whereby oil and other products will be exchanged for manufactured goods.

Anglo-American Defence Deal Hailed Everywhere With Great Satisfaction

WASHINGTON, D.C., September 4.— Except for some isolated criticism in the United States, the agreement between the United States and Great Britain for the exchange of defence sites on British posessions in the Western Atlantic for fifty over-age destroyers to be added to the British fleet is hailed with widespread approval in both countries concerned.

A board of United States army and navy experts will be leaving almost immediately for Bermuda to inspect sites on that island. Surveys for the other bases will follow later.

Eight of the United States destroyers will leave Boston almost immediately for Canada, there to be turned over to the British naval authorities. British naval crews will be sent across the Atlantic to take over other destroyers now at New York.

Supporters of the agreement at Washington, and they far outweigh the opponents, hail the deal as the greatest defense stroke since the days of Jefferson in 1803. They hold that the deal is not inconsistent with peace being maintained by the United States and that it does not constitute a move on the part of United States against any country. Rather it is a great security move.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt describes the deal as "epochal and far reaching" in preparation for defence against a grave menace from abroad.

On the other hand, some isolationists assail the deal as "unconstitutional" and marking the final abandonment of United States neutrality.

In London First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander greeted the deal with "utmost pleasure and satisfaction" and declared that the American destroyers would be of the greatest value for convey purposes and also in connection with the defence of the British Isles against possible invasion.

Ottawa was jubilant over the deal and Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King said the facts spoke for themselves in regard to Anglo-American Friendship.

Mrs. D. G. Borland and daughters, Betty and Anne, who have been spending a vacation visiting in Vancouver and elsewhere in the south, returned home on the Prince George this morning.

Betty Milton and Freddy Webster Arrive From Newcastle, England, To Remain Here For Duration

Canada's War Chiefs

MAJ.-GEN. H. D. G. CRERAR
Chief of the General Staff

By KEN CLARK, Canadian Press Staff Writer
(Copyright, 1940, by The Canadian Press)

Maj.-Gen. Henry Duncan Graham Crerar, D.S.O., Chief of the General Staff, which is to say the senior officer of Canada's army, was born in Hamilton, Ont., 52 years ago.

He is not photogenic. His picture in the paper gives a poor impression of his appearance, representing him as of strained sardonic mien. On the contrary he has a pleasant expression, serious, relieved by an occasional smile. His color is healthy and his eye blue-gray.

Except for the tunic on which he wears red tabs with golden oak leaves, he might be taken for a lawyer as was his father, or perhaps a doctor who played enough golf to keep in trim shape. The General's game is reported excellent, methodical. He accepts life moderately, fastening a cool even mind upon the problems of his own work, on outside matters bearing upon them.

General Crerar is a soldier by choice. After the last war in which he distinguished himself with the Canadian artillery, succeeding Lt.-Col. A. G. L. McNaughton as Counter Battery Staff Officer with the Canadian Corps, he was of two minds as to staying with the army or going into the business of manufacturing electric lamps.

He thought he could make more money by going into business but he was strongly influenced by friendships he had made in the army. Finally he said to himself: "Do what you want to do."

There followed years of study, travel, broadening experience. To the knowledge gained at Upper Canada College, Royal Military College, with the Canadian Field Artillery in peace and as a brigade major with the 5th Canadian Division Artillery in war, were added the refinements of a two-year course at the Staff College at Camberley, secondment to the general staff at the British War Office, and studies at the Imperial Defence College.

Saw Years Ahead

The young and veteran officer travelled widely in Europe, to Berlin, Vienna, Prague and Budapest, studying military matters and political. In 1923 with several other students he made a survey of Czecho-Slovakia and in consensus they gave that country surrounded by unfriendly giants, geographically impossible of defence, 15 years of life. That was a close calculation.

In 1928 he taught tactics at R. M. C. and the next year was called to Ottawa by General McNaughton to draw up a plan for the reorganization of the Canadian Militia. General Crerar designed the structure of the present Canadian army and made plans for its mobilization.

At Geneva in 1932 he was witness to the abortive Disarmament Conference which he found "intensely interesting but sometimes boring." The arbiters of peace or war, in truth, can only be the great and heavily armed powers. The pleas, at that time, of the little nations for disarmament and peace, with their representatives speaking sometimes at great lengths concerning their own peaceful aspirations and disarmed condition, were bound to be ineffective.

France wanted security and Germany equality. A formula was produced "Security and Equality." This sounded well but it occurred to the practical mind which had observed at first hand the developments in middle Europe with especial reference to Hitlerian doc-

HOUSING SITUATION

The real estate and newspaper offices are being deluged with inquiries from people wishing to rent houses, rooms or flats. Soldiers are here who wish to bring their wives north but who cannot do so because of lack of accommodation. All existing accommodation is taken and even the hotels are filled. On Sunday night at least one man tried every hotel and rooming house in town and could not get a place to sleep. He had to call on a friend for a shakedown. That is the situation. The city has never been so completely filled up as it is today.

What is the remedy? Of course the natural thing would be for local people to build new houses for the people who are needing them. The difficulty is that local people do not seem to have the money with which to build or they are otherwise tied up so that they cannot do it.

At one time there was a local building society that helped to finance new houses. It paid steady dividends while it was going. Unfortunately it was decided to wind up the society. The final dividend paid was 7 per cent, most of the previous dividends being eight per cent.

Yesterday one of the local men in uniform who wishes to bring his wife and family to the city investigated the possibility of building a home for himself in Prince Rupert. For a man in uniform the city commissioner agreed to give two lots at half the price charged others for similar lots. The proposal is being investigated and may go through. Several other men in uniform are considering a similar proposition. They argue that, if they are here only a few months, they will have the houses which should pay them good dividends. Ready built houses are also being discussed.

It might well be a subject for discussion by the Chamber of Commerce Monday if any member or outsider has a possible remedy for the situation.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE

Charles Lindbergh and Henry Ford hold medals for distinguished service given them by Adolf Hitler. A contemporary very reasonably asks to whom the distinguished service was rendered. The convincing answer is that it was rendered to Germany. A correspondent seems to think both of these men are continuing to earn their medals by serving Hitler instead of their own country. Their public utterances seem to indicate this.

GRADUAL CHANGE

There is coming about a gradual change of opinion as to whom is going to win the war. When France collapsed, people looked rather pityingly on little Great Britain and wondered how long the country could hold out. They argued that, if they could not win with the help of France's large army, they certainly could not be expected to win when standing alone. The only thing wrong with the argument was the mentality and stamina of the British people. They showed the stuff of which they were made during the wonderful retreat from Dunkirk. Since that they have come to a realization that the British Empire, with the aid of the United States, is the most powerful force in the world. Today the whole world is gazing with admiration at the stubborn defence of Britain and the brilliant attacks on Germany and Italy. A month has seen a great change in world sentiment and the next month or two is very likely to show a much greater change. The Royal Air Force is being strengthened almost every day. The losses are not large and the morale is at the very highest.

The British are awaiting the promised invasion with confidence.

CHAMBER IS IN SESSION

Junior Board Of Trade To Nominate Officers—Will Also Seek New Members

A nominating committee consisting of J. C. Gilker, George L. Earle and A. S. Nickerson was delegated at the regular monthly dinner meeting last night of the Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce to present a slate of officers for next year at the October meeting of the Junior Chamber. A committee consisting of A. S. Nickerson, R. E. Mortimer, F. G. Southby, Alf Rivett, Peter DeJong, G. T. German and T. J. Williams was appointed to undertake a drive for new members.

Last night's meeting of the Junior Chamber was the first following a suspension of two months during the summer vacation season. President A. S. Nickerson was in the chair.

Business at the meeting was largely of routine nature. There was correspondence concerning the recent freeing of Joe Celona from prison, assistance in connection with national registration, legislation regarding the sale of petroleum products, costs of education and the recent convention of the Junior Chambers of Commerce of British Columbia at Kelowna.

Liner Disables Italian U-Boat

LISBON, Sept. 4: (CP)—Informed sources said today that the British liner Avoceta had been attacked by an Italian submarine off Portugal today. Fired on twice by the submarine, the Avoceta returned the volley of shellfire, shattering the raider's periscope. The submarine then submerged.

Is Looking For Airplane Spruce

E. E. Gregg, loaned by the British Columbia Forest Branch to the federal government for the purpose of searching out suitable stands of Sitka spruce for airplane manufacture in the war emergency, has been in this district for the past ten days. At the first of the week he was at Prudhomme Lake in the vicinity of which there is said to be a suitable stand of Sitka spruce.

Mr. Gregg was formerly assistant district forester here but in more recent years has been attached to headquarters staff in Victoria.

AIR RAIDS REPULSED

Nazis Driven Away From Britain Today—R.A.F. Strikes Successfully at French Coast

LONDON, Sept. 4: (CP)—British fighting planes and anti-aircraft guns repelled three enemy thrusts today as it was disclosed that Royal Air Force bombers had launched a four-hour series of counter-attacks Tuesday night against advanced German bases in France. The British raids were aimed at Pas de Calais, Le Touquet, St. Omer and other points.

"High explosives were dropped on a landing ground. Later aircraft maintained the attack and one pilot saw six separate fires on an airdrome," the Air Ministry said of the Le Touquet attack.

Attempted attacks on Kent and Essex airports by two German forces were turned back this morning without reported damage or casualties.

There were three brief alarms in London and five German planes were brought down in a short battle over a southeast town where no bombs were dropped.

The Air Ministry, however, announced that, during the night, German bombers had caused a number of fatalities as they attacked a northeast coast town in waves.

The Germans claim having set fires in Liverpool, Cardiff, Bristol, Coventry and Plymouth.

trine, that if there should be equality that would hardly guarantee security.

There was a good deal of talk about how a 75 millimetre gun was defensive, whereas a 4.5 inch gun small difference in calibre) was offensive. "The answer," the General points out, "lies actually at which end of the gun you happen to find yourself.

When the war broke out he went to London to organize Canadian military headquarters, beginning with a colonel and a stenographer and winding up with a smooth machine of some 400 personnel before his return to Ottawa.

Theory and Actuality

In pre-war years, General Crerar says, if he is asked, two erroneous tactical ideas "cursed" peaceful nations. One was that the power of the defence was as three-to-one compared to the attack, a pleasant and comforting thought to a nation that had no aggressive designs. The second was the belief that a line, several kilometres in depth perhaps, but still a line like the Chinese wall, was the answer to an offensive. Hence the Maginot Line, built in strength only along the Franco-German frontier, with the assumption, despite the lesson of the last war that neutrality would be respected.

The theory of linear defence was exploded by breaking a hole through and consistently pushing forces through the break to fan out and establish themselves on the country in the rear; reinforcement by air and bombing by air, the dive-bomber taking the place of the gun projectile.

The answer was defence in great depth and mobile forces for counter attack. The island of the United Kingdom is so defended. There are pill boxes in the heart of London, every inch of terrain is a strong point. The mobile forces including those of General McNaughton's command are there in quantity.

General Crerar's enunciation is crisp and clear, unhurried. The first impression is that of a practical and sound workman with materials to hand in a factual situation. But as his words march and counter march, skirmish, retreat and advance, a defence in great depth and much mobile force is observable, the imagination and flexibility of mind necessary to deal with a kaleidescopic world.

He considers, for example, the possibility of a world Utopia with free trade, free migration, then dismisses the idea as something desirable perhaps, definitely out of our time. He considers the effect on minorities of the contraction of the earth through the radio and automobile mixing populations, whether the disappearance of small nations in Europe is an indication of a tendency toward larger groupings. He is an active member of the Institute of International Affairs.

Then he turns again to his men and guns and equipment. He is confident that the men will be sought and found as they are required.

Little Spare Time

There is small time these days to go and sail at the family summer place at Foote's Bay, Muskoka. Sometimes he gets in a rubber of bridge, no shark but a good player.

General Crerar is married to the former Miss Verschoyle Cronyn and they have two children. Their daughter, Peggy, is married to Lieut. H. Z. Palmer of the Royal Canadian Artillery, and the 17-year old son is at Upper Canada College.

Among his maps, behind an enormous desk covered with documents, books and papers, General Crerar sits and occasionally smokes a large curved shell briar pipe. As he talks he glances at a good-sized map of the world somewhat as a chess player regards a complicated board presaging a difficult game which he is sure of winning.

On the mantel at his back are a dozen photographs of high military officials, personal friends of his.

"Generals," he observes, "are pretty much like other people."

From The Waterfront

Arriving in port at 10 o'clock this morning from the south, C.N.R. steamer Prince George, Capt. H. E. Nedden, is inaugurating the company's schedule of fall sailings, calling for a weekly service between Prince Rupert and Vancouver via Powell River and Ocean Falls. The Prince George will sail at 3 p.m. for Ketchikan and Stewart and is due back here at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, sailing at 11:30 p.m. for the south. This Friday the Prince Rupert, which sailed on Monday afternoon for the south, will be back here from Vancouver and will lay over here until Thursday night of next week when she will go on the run in place of the Prince George which will be withdrawn from service here for the winter.

Making a special run north with an overflow of passengers who ordinarily would have come north on the Catala had she had room to accommodate all, Union steamer Cassiar, Capt. Alex McLennan, arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday morning from the south and sailed at 8:30 a.m. on her return to Vancouver via Claxton, Butedale, Namu and Tallheo at each of which points she will load canned salmon.

Union steamer Catala, Capt. James Findlay, returned to port at 9:15 last night from Stewart and other northern points and sailed an hour later for Vancouver and waypoints.

Alice Marble, queen of Uncle Sam's tennis courts, wants an ice cream soda. Before every match she says: "This time I'll really have my ice cream soda if I win." She usually wins. But she never gets the soda. Her coach, Eleanor Tennant, always says: "Now Pinky, you know you'd rather have a rare beefsteak." And Pinky (Alice Marble to us) says: "Y-es. I would."

Miss Marble has found her way to tennis championships, restored health and continued beauty by listening to her coach. "I never overeat," she explains. "I choose a lot of vegetables and drink lemon juice in water—not hot water. I practice the year round, play golf for exercise and fun, and jump rope daily to keep my figure trim and improve my breathing." She listens to a teacher who is determined that she shall keep the sleek beauty she began with. Her skin is even better than it used to be.

Alice never grips the racket and never contracts her muscles but plays an easy game with good rhythm and timing. Such a system often makes the difference between imitating men and holding your own as a woman. The champion's legs are nearly perfect, with a grand summer tan, and are free of hair. Her toenails, bright red, match finger nails and lipstick. She has learned how to use makeup since she was called down for using too much during an English match. Her only rigid muscles are of the waist and diaphragm, which ought to be the envy of every girdle-clad woman.

Great Peaks Are Ascended

Fitzwilliam and Bucephalus Conquered By Climbers

JASPER PARK, Sept. 4:—Dominating peaks of the Yellowhead Pass, Mounts Fitzwilliam and Bucephalis both were ascended over the week-end by four Edmonton mountaineers who returned here yesterday.

From timberline camp near Lucerne, Reg Gault, skiing instructor from the Alpine Club of Canada, Dr. Hector MacLean and the Misses Jean MacDonald and Lillian Chapman made the ascent of Fitzwilliam in five hours, Sunday, climbing the neighboring Bucephalis in the afternoon.

First ascents of the two peaks, seldom climbed because of their inaccessability, were made in 1917 by boundary commission engineers.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

STORAGE PROBLEM IS WORRY

Conditions In Europe Cut Off Many Export Markets

By Charles Gunning
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4: (CP) — Western Canada's greatest industry—wheat farming—moves steadily toward the close of another bumper harvest season wondering if the future held as many potent surprises as those which worried the grain trade in the first 12 months of war.

With a great part of the healthy new yield, unofficially estimated as high as 450,000,000 bushels, tucked away in elevators and hastily-erected bins, farmers and grain traders are trying to untie the tangled wheat problem. They compare present conditions with those at the end of July, 1915—one year after the start of the First Great War.

Since early summer, when it became evident that prairie farms should produce another bumper crop, storage and marketing problems have increased the worries of western agriculturists.

At the end of the 1939-40 crop year a record carryover of more than 273,000,000 bushels remained unsold in Canadian terminals and country elevators which have a capacity of almost 423,000,000 bushels. As Hitler's hordes swept first over the small neutral countries of Europe and then France, potential export markets for wheat were cut off, leaving only United Kingdom ports open to ships carrying Canadian wheat.

As a result, overseas shipments dwindled to spasmodic trickles, wheat clearances from Lakehead terminals dropped off and Western Canada elevators became swollen with country deliveries.

Farmers were called upon to carry a share of the burden by storing grain on their farms when the Canadian Wheat Board announced that first delivery permitted by the Board would be restricted to five bushels of wheat, oats and barley for each seeded acre. No restrictions were placed on flax and rye deliveries.

Price Variation

An initial minimum price of 70 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat, basis Fort William, was assured producers who marketed their wheat with the board and the almost stagnant condition of wheat futures prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange made it increasingly apparent that most growers would sell their wheat to government agents.

When the war in Europe began last September 3 wheat prices on the Winnipeg markets were hovering around 55 cents a bushel. War boom buying boosted values almost to the dollar mark during the weeks that followed but Germany's invasion of the Lowlands touched off a wave of panicky selling which slashed as much as 30 cents from quotations within a week before the government pegged prices on May 18. Cash prices were fixed shortly after.

For a time wheat prices fluctuated nervously near the pegs below which they could not drop but on une 25 they sank to their minimums where they have remained ever since. The pegged prices are 73⅝ cents a bushel for October wheat and 74⅝ cents for December.

Veteran growers who farmed the western wheat belt during the First Great War recalled a somewhat similar 1915 picture.

The government of Sir Robert Borden had not tagged wheat with a minimum price on the open market, nor had it assured farmers a delivery price, but, like today, the wheat trade faced an export tie-up.

Overseas shipments were hampered by shortage of shipping space in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Many Canadian ships had been taken over by the British Admiralty to transport troops.

The call for food supplies for the Allied armies had resulted in a 25 percent increase in sown acreage in Western Canada in 1915 compared with the previous year when 168,000,000 bushels of wheat were grown. July estimates placed the new yield at 250,000,000 bushels and there was storage space in Canada for only 168,000,000 bushels.

A quarter of a century ago, however, modern machinery did not rush harvesting operations as it does today. Railways and elevators were not asked to handle millions of bushels of grain within a few weeks.

Old Time Harvesting

Instead of shiny tractor-pulled combines which cut and thresh the grain in a single operation with a crew of four or five men, scores of harvesters were required for a single threshing outfit.

Binders pulled by horses cut the golden stands of grain. The binders were followed by stook teams which bundled the grain in preparation for the steam-driven threshing machines. Today stream - line trucks haul the threshed grain swiftly to country loading points and farm bins; 25 years ago "Dobbin" pulled grain-filled wagons to market—a much slower operation.

The present trend toward individual harvesting outfits is far removed from the hilarious, boisterous gangs which wandered up and down the countryside in 1915 accompanied by cook cars, bunkhouses and crew outfits.

Western farmers who delivered wheat to elevators at the end of July, 1915, received $1.27 a bushel, less freight rates to the lakehead, for No. 1 Northern. At the time, October wheat was quoted at $1.29¼ on the Winnipeg Exchange and December at $1.04¼.

While no government control measures were in effect a year after the outbreak of the First Great War, shortly after, on November 29, Ottawa commandeered all No. 1, 2 and 3 Northern wheat in store at the head of the lakes and in Eastern Canada. The move was made as the result of a deal for Canadian wheat between the British and Dominion governments.

Owners of the wheat taken were given the prevailing cash price on the Winnipeg market—$1.04¾ for No. 1 Northern, $1.03⅛ for No. 2 and 99⅞ cents for No. 3.

LONDON (CP)—The Montreal price of bar gold on the London market was unchanged today at $37.54 per fine ounce

100 SAFE IN BOMB SHELTER AS BUILDING ABOV E BLAZES

The earth rumbled and some of the 100 refugees in the bomb shelter moved uneasily, but the rumbling stopped and no one was hurt in the shelter itself at Southampton, England. Immediately above the shelter, however, this furniture depository caught fire from Nazi-dropped incendiary bombs and the local firemen are shown quelling the flames.

DEVELOP PROPERTY

Hunter Basin Mine Near Smithers To Be Equipped With Machinery

SMITHERS, Sept. 4.—The development work being carried out on the Hunter Basin mining property by the Conwest people has proven very satisfactory and it has been decided to equip the property with machinery.

In order to get the machinery to the property it will be necessary to construct eight and a half miles of road and a contract has been let to a Penticton firm for this work. It is expected to have construction under way immediately and to be completed in a few weeks. The road will start at the Dockrill coal mine and follow an easy grade to the property.

When this road has been completed it is likely that an increased number of men will be taken on and that development work will proceed much faster than it has been doing by hand.

Mrs Dora Arney, Miss Nora Postulo and Miss Louise Zarelli, who have zeen visiting in Vancouver, were among home comers returning from the south on the Prince George this morning.

DUTHIE IS OPERATING

Thirteen Men Working at Smithers Property—Regular Shipments Being Made

SMITHERS, Sept. 4.—A crew of thirteen men is now employed at the Duthie mine near Smithers by Messrs Kelley and Herman who have this property leased. Carloads of ore are being shipped out at frequent intervals and the results have been very satisfactory despite the extremely low price of silver and lead which are the principal ores being mined there.

A school is being established at the property again this year to take care of the children now living at the mine. It is the first school there in the past 10 years.

Few Changes In Smithers School

Two New Teachers In High School And None In Public

SMITHERS, Sept. 4:—The local schools got away yesterday to the start for their annual term. The public school has the same staff of teachers that was there last year but the High School has two new teachers. Mr. McArthur of Kimberley and Mr. Campbell, who taught at Telkwa last year, have taken the places of Mr. Kenney and Mr. McCague who resigned to take positions in other schools. Mr. Crockett remains as principal of the High School and A. D Jones as principal of the Public School.

VANDERHOOF

The agricultural committee of the Vanderhoof and District Board of Trade has just completed a farm census of the Nechako Valley. It shows that land cleared in the area totals 11,916 acres with 6941/2 acres in wheat, 3,225 acres in oats, 1621/2 acres in barley and 3,271 acres in hay and feed. The livestock census shows the farmers of the Nechako district to own 1688 head of cattle, 352 hogs and 919 sheep. The immediate vicinity of Vanderhoof shows by far the greatest development although the census also included the Lakes, Mapes, Chilco, Hulatt, Engen and Stuart River districts. It is planned in future to take such a census annually.

The site is being cleared for a new skating rink at Vanderhoof. Building material has been purchased and commencement on the structure is to be made in the near future.

A meeting of the Vanderhoof United Church choir was held last Thursday evening. Practices for the winter will be resumed this Thursday evening. Both the Anglican and United Churches are resuming activities for the season here.

Miss Jean I. McGeachy is here from Vancouver visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. McGeachy.

There has been a good deal of rainfall in the Nechako Valley during the past week with showers of more or less weight on five successive days. It is also getting cooler and, like the rest of the central interior, there is a distinct feeling of fall in the air.

Daily advertising in the Daily News is sure to bring daily results.

Labor Day brought some welcome sunshine after a long spell of clouds and rain. Local tennis fans were out and numbers of people spent the holiday at Lakelse Lake.

Bears are plentiful in the vicinity of Terrace. A big fellow may sometimes be seen wandering about the river gravels near the Skeena bridge and Mrs. Nigel Sherwood reports that a fine black bear spent some time in her flower garden on Thursday.

NORTH IN ORE SHOW

District Well Represented At Vancouver—Omineca Has Best Collection

SMITHERS, Sept. 4:— Mining properties of the north were well represented among the prize winners at the Canadian Pacific Exhibition in Vancouver last week, a number of northern properties carrying off the first prize in their classes.

The Hunter Basin property, about 20 miles from Smithers, was awarded first prize for copper gold ore. This property is under option by the Con West people and is under the supervision of Mr. Tomlinson M.E.

The Silver Pick property on Babine Mountain near Smithers was given first prize in the silver-lead class. This property is owned by Mrs. Martin Kean and associates of Vancouver and is under option to Vancouver interests. Work is being carried out by a small crew under direction of Mr. Agnew M. E. who is in Smithers at the present time.

Tommy Turner Sr. of Terrace, the well known old timer and prospector of that place, received first prize money in the gold-silver-lead class from his property near Terrace while Hagen and Clore of Copper City got a second prize for gold ore.

In addition to the individual awards, the first prize for the best collection of ore from any one mining division went to the Omineca mining division.

These ore samples will be put on permanent display in the British Columbia Chamber of Mines in Vancouver and should result in some first class advertising for the mineral resources of the north.

Frank E. Woodside, manager of the British Columbia Chamber of Mines in Vancouver has always been a consistent booster for the north and takes every opportunity of bringing to the notice of the mining fraternity the resources of Northern British Columbia.

Much credit also must be given to Dr. J. T. Mandy, resident mining engineer of Prince Rupert, who has done so much to advise and encourage the prospectors and property holders throughout this district in his frequent visits to their properties. His assistance has been greatly appreciated and has meant money in their pockets in a great many instances.

HOPE FOR HIGHWAY

SMITHERS, Sept. 4.—Hope has been renewed in the district that, with the sudden realization in the United States of the great need of immediate connection with Alaska to provide for the proper means of defence of that outlying portion of the country and also in view of the new arrangement for joint measures of defence between that country and Canada, the Alaska highway will be one of the first projects considered by the joint commission in this connection.

With all the data for the highway now in the hands of the two governments a great deal of the preliminary work has already been completed and it should not take very long to get action in the matter if it is decided to go ahead with the project.

The Hazelton route being the very shortest route that can now be selected and with the added and greatest advantage being the fact that it will be much closer to the Alaska towns and seaports than any other route, thereby giving quicker and easier access to the highway from these places, while the main highway itself will be well protected from hostile attack, sheltered by the Coast range of mountains, it would seem logical and most feasible that the Hazelton route would be the route chosen for this highway when and if it is decided to proceed with its construction.
