BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Defensive signals are helpful in most situations but they are not perfect mechanical gadgets which eliminate the necessity of logical reasoning and sound judgment. In today's deal Mr. Muzzy won the first trick with the king of spades. Mr. Meek played the eight and Miss Brash the queen.

When he saw the queen, Mr. Muzzy looked wise and winked at the kibitzers. "Think you're playing with children?" he asked Miss Brash. It never occurred to him to check the cards under his partner's eight spot.

The bidding:

|---|---|---|---|

| 2 ♥ | Pass | 3 ♥ | Pass |
| 4 ♥ | All Pass | | |

Opening lead: King of spades.

All of them, from the seven to the deuce, were showing in his own hand and the dummy. This meant, of course, that Mr. Meek has played his lowest spade, that he did not want the suit continued, and that he would have played the deuce if he had held it.

Miss Brash

But to Muzzy the eight looked like a come-on and he continued with the ace of spades. He was amazed when Miss Brash ruffed. "No spades?" he said, as if he had been cheated.

Miss Brash picked up the trumps in two leads, ending on the board. She ruffed dummy's last spade in her hand, then led the ten of clubs. Mr. Meek could take his ace any time he chose, but when he did he would be able to take just one more trick—the ace of diamonds.

If, instead of cashing the diamond he returned a club, Miss Brash would discard three of her diamonds on dummy's club suit and lose one diamond at the end.

If Mr. Meek returned a spade, Miss Brash would win all of the remaining tricks, making five-odd. She would discard a diamond and ruff the spade in dummy. Then her other diamonds would go off on dummy's clubs.

If Mr. Muzzy had made the most promising shift of a diamond at trick two, there would have been no chance for the contract. The loss of one spade, two diamonds and a club would have been automatic.

"Why did you play a high spade on the first trick?" asked Mr. Muzzy. "Didn't you play the eight of something?"

"Maybe I should carry a pocketful of deuces around just for situations like this," Mr. Meek replied disgustedly.

BRITAIN'S FAIREST — Lovely Janet Munro, voted England's "Miss Television of 1958," arrives at New York International Airport from London to start rehearsing for the Hall of Fame NBC-TV production of "Berkeley Square," Feb. 5. The auburned-haired, green-eyed star, who is one of the most popular young actresses in Britain, arrived on BOAC's Comet jet.

BIRD SANCTUARY—Unimpressed by the automotive activity all around them, wild mallard ducks make themselves at home at a gas station in Belleville, Wis. Actually, the ducks were making a flank attack on the feed mill next door. The wily birds frequent the village where shooting them is illegal.

Two drivers fined $90

Frederick Arthur Switzer, 36, of 1345 Sixth Avenue East was fined $75, costs or in default of payment sentenced to two months in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court this morning to a charge of impaired driving.

RCMP told Magistrate E. T. Applewhaite that Switzer was found by police "staggering" around his vehicle that had shortly before struck a telephone pole near the Oceanside Cannery. No recommendation for suspension of licence was made.

Also in police court today, Glendon Floyd Smith, 20, of 1203 Second Avenue West was fined $15, costs or in default of payment sentenced to eight days in jail when he pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle without a muffler.
