BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

How much do you need to raise your partner's simple overcall? This is a question on which the textbooks are strangely silent. They concentrate on telling you how to respond to partner's opening bids.

That is very useful information, but partners do overcall frequently and therefore learning how to handle such bids is essential for a winning game.

When your partner opens the bidding and next hand overcalls, a bid by you is a free bid promising definite values. If you had bid after a second hand pass, that would not have been a free bid and might have been made on skimpy values to give partner another chance.

With overcalls, the situation is just the reverse. If your partner overcalls and next hand passes, a bid by you is a free bid.

Mr. Masters

The reason is that partner did not ask you to bid. If he had wanted you to bid he would have doubled for a takeout.

So if you enter the auction, he will justifiably expect your action to have been based on sound values in your own hand and not on a desire to find "a better spot" or to keep the bidding open for him on doubtful values.

When Mr. Masters overcalled in today's deal and Mrs. Fusty passed, it was up to Mr. Champion to decide whether or not to take further action. He figured it this way. If Mr. Masters had opened the bidding with a spade, the North cards would have been a little too much for a single raise and not quite enough for a double raise.

This is just about the amount of strength required for a single raise of a simple overcall. Discounting his queen of hearts because of the open-bid in that suit, Mr. Champion still had enough to bid two spades. Holding additional values, Mr. Masters took a shot at game.

Mrs. Fusty opened the deuce of hearts, the seven went on from dummy, Mr. Abel played the jack and the king won. With two sure red suit losers, the problem was to avoid losing two clubs. At trick two Mr. Masters led a diamond to dummy's king and Mr. Abel won with the ace.

The ace of hearts was cashed and followed by a trump lead. Mr. Masters pulled just two rounds of trumps, hoping that was all Mr. Abel had.

Then he cashed two diamonds and played the ace and another club. Mr. Abel was in with the king of clubs and had only red cards left. Any return would enable Mr. Masters to discard his losing club while ruffing in dummy.

Trotter Diller Hanover to face 14 challengers

By BILL HUDSON

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)— Seldom-beaten Diller Hanover, chief contender for this year's three-year old trotting championship faces 14 challengers in today's rich Hambletonian.

Harness racing fans hope for a fast track and a possible record time to erase the 1:59 4-5 last year by Emily's Pride. It rained Tuesday but the sun broke through before sunset. The forecast today is for clear weather.

Post time was 1:30 p.m. MDT with succeeding heats hourly until one horse wins two of the one-mile dashes.

This 34th Hambletonian carries a $125,284 gross purse, richest harness race ever. The winner's share is $73,655.

Diller Hanover drew the No. 2 position. That's all the advantage most fans figured he and veteran pilot Frank Ervin will need. Among his main competitors are John A. Hanover and Circo, both in the front line, and his stablemate, Tie Silk, next to the outside in the second tier.

Diller's career record is 23 victories in 34 heats and earnings of $132,117.

Diller's regular driver, Ralph Baldwin of Lloydminster, Sask., fulfilled a contract obligation to drive Tie Silk. Neither Baldwin nor Ervin have ever won a Hambletonian.

Remember when . .

Sylvanus Apps, the McMaster University student who won points for Canada as a pole-vaulter at the Berlin Olympics, signed a two-year contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League 23 years ago today. A consistent scorer for the Leafs, he was voted the NHL's best rookie in his first season.

it's a FACT

Our Colonial ancestors frequently raised large families and lived long lives in spite of, not because of, their ideas on medicine. These included powdered frogs as a tonic; vinegar and crabs' eyes for ulcers, and bleeding for almost anything. For the fever, one put his fingernail parings in a linen bag and tied it to an eel. The theory was that the eel, not the patient, would die.

Mailed letter

FREEHOLD, N.J. (AP) — When 10-year-old Douglas Soden went to camp his mother wanted to make sure she heard from him—so she gave him a stamped addressed envelope and inserted a blank sheet of paper.

Mrs. Soden got the envelope Tuesday. Inside, as she had left it, was the blank sheet of paper.

To check blasts

TRAIL (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes said Monday the RCAF and RCMP are investigating a series of explosion-like sounds heard in this area during recent weeks.
