Japanese missionaries encouraged

CALGARY (CP)—A young, pretty Japanese Anglican missionary said here that Christians must work hard to gain the confidence of the Japanese, who are mostly Buddhists.

Fujiko Yokota said the Japanese feel they don't need Christianity in their lives.

"With only 25 Anglican missionaries in Japan, it is very difficult to win converts.

The biggest problem is winning the confidence of the people, and encouraging them to attend church services."

The Anglican church believes that Japanese missionaries might be more effective than white church workers, she said, and is attempting to gain missionaries through a native education program. In Japan, three-year missionary courses are offered.

Miss Yokota, a graduate of one of these schools, now is heading for three years of study at Toronto, to become a deaconess of the church.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Here is another illustration of the fact that the most important play by a defender is not the opening lead, but the first lead he makes after the opening lead.

Mr. Masters found the killing defense in today's hand. But, as good as he is, it would have been impossible for him to find it with his opening lead. He figured it out logically at his second chance—after he had seen the dummy and reconsidered the bidding.

The opening was the king of hearts, a purely routine choice. Miss Brash played the discouraging deuce and this, coupled with the fact that she had raised hearts, made it practically certain that Mr. Champion had started with a singleton in the suit.

So, no more tricks for the defenders in hearts. It was extremely unlikely that Miss Brash had a trick in the trump suit, but if she did it would have to be the ace or the king-queen—in other words, a trick she would always get.

Mr. Masters

It appeared more likely that she held one of the minor suit aces. If she had the ace of diamonds, then Mr. Champion undoubtedly had the ace of clubs.

That would not be good for the defenders as they would probably win only two tricks—a heart and a diamond.

On gaining the lead, Mr. Champion could take two rounds of trumps, then start pushing diamonds until the ace was knocked out. Even if his spade suit was only a five-carder, he would win five spades, four diamonds and the ace of clubs.

But if Miss Brash's ace was the ace of clubs, there was a chance to beat the hand. And with that solid diamond suit in dummy, that chance had to be taken at once.

With these thoughts in mind, Mr. Masters decided that the club suit offered the only reasonable hope. And he had to choose exactly the right club to lead.

He did. He led the jack and at that point the contract was doomed. If Mr. Champion did not put up dummy's queen, the jack would win and the ace and king would defeat the hand. Actually, he did elect to put up the queen and Miss Brash won with the ace and returned the suit. Mr. Masters then held king-nine over the ten-seven to guarantee the set.

PNE to feature sports tourney for first time

Everything from darts to wrestling will be included at the Pacific National Exhibition's first Sports Tournament which is being held during the annual affair, starting tomorrow and running until September 7.

The tournament is expected to bring together the greatest variety of sportsmen ever gathered in British Columbia at one meet and will be made up of such sports as bowling, darts, table tennis, snooker, shuffleboard, junior Olympic track meet, fencing, judo, gymnastics, weight lifting, bicycle racing and amateur racing.

Main feature of the indoor section of the PNE's first Sports tourney will be the province-wide five-pin bowling tournament, which will be staged on all 14 days of the fair.

Teams composed of 64 men and 32 women from all parts of B.C. will compete as the finalists of 30,000 bowlers now playing in elimination contests.

The bowlers will play on two alleys specially built in the west wing of the B.C. Building at the cost of $50,000, where the majority of the indoor events will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dudoward and their son Russell of Port Simpson, returned home Wednesday night by train after vacationing for three weeks in Jasper, Vancouver and Victoria.
