it's a FACT

The beaver was once abundant in Northern Europe, but became extinct there centuries ago. As early as 900, beaver fur was so rare it was used only for trimming the garments of kings. A beaver dam is seldom more than 6 feet high, but may be as long as 1,000 feet. A single beaver can cut down a tree 8 inches in diameter in one night.

Blackwood on BRIDGE

See if you can figure out beforehand why Mr. Dale played the latter part of his hand the way he did.

Everybody was in the bidding today. When Miss Brash overcalled with two clubs Mr. Champion went in for the kill. Mr. Muzzy had an escape that apparently couldn't be hurt too badly and when Mr. Dale bid two hearts, Mr. Champion was glad to give him a raise. Mr. Dale then carried on to game.

Miss Brash cashed the ace and king of spades in that order. This deviation from the usual procedure of leading the king first told Mr. Dale that she had started with two cards in the suit. Of course, the same story was there for Mr. Muzzy to read—if he was paying any attention.

Mr. Dale

Hoping to give her partner the lead at the third trick, Miss Brash shifted to the jack of diamonds. This was covered all around and won by Mr. Dale with the ace. To thwart Miss Brash's apparent plan to ruff a spade, he quickly led three rounds of trumps. Then he led his last diamond, Mr. Muzzy winning with the ten.

A spade was returned and Mr. Dale took it with the queen. He led a club and paused to think for a moment after Miss Brash followed suit with the four spot.

Sitting there with the long king, Mr. Muzzy put on an expression of the greatest innocence. But suddenly Mr. Dale reached over to dummy and played the ace.

A howl went up from Mr. Muzzy. "Did you have two clubs, Dale?" he asked suspiciously. Mr. Dale answered in the affirmative.

"Then how could you possibly decide not to take the finesse?" Mr. Muzzy demanded. "My partner bid clubs without the ace, queen, ten and nine. To play me for the king, you must have peeked."

"I didn't peek," replied Mr. Dale, smiling. "The play of the ace was an absolutely sure think—and without seeing your hand."

"Just tell me how you knew that," said Mr. Muzzy pugnaciously.

"Because the six of diamonds in dummy was good," answered Mr. Dale quietly.

War on Opossums

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (AP)—Dropped from the air, the poison 1080 is proving effective against opossums, a grave menace in some New Zealand forests. The poison may become the main weapon on the extermination campaign which now costs large sums annually.

Red Firecrackers

MACAO (Reuters)— Communist China's ability to quote lower prices has sent Macao's once-thriving firecracker industry into its worst slump in many years. Firecracker production in this Portuguese territory in China is only half of what it was a year ago.
