

FOR SCHOOL TRUSTEE

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

Having been approached by a large number of friends representing various interests in the city to offer myself as a candidate for the School Board, I have consented to do so and respectfully solicit your votes and influence. Having a direct personal interest in the educational advantages that this growing city should have, it shall be my aim to bring the schools of Prince Rupert up to the highest possible standard with the least possible waste of the public funds. Yours sincerely,

S. D. MACDONALD.

To the Electors of Prince Rupert

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I intend to be a candidate at the forthcoming election for School Trustee. I have served in that capacity for the past two years, and if elected I will continue to pursue the policy that has been followed by me on the board in the past, of doing my best to encourage the highest standards of education in the city, and shall use my best endeavor to see that the facilities for the education of the young are the best within the reach of the municipality. Your vote and influence on my behalf are solicited. Yours sincerely,

O. H. NELSON.

Electors of Ward One

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I am offering myself as a candidate for Ward One at the forthcoming election. I am seeking the position in the hope that I may be of service to the city in the capacity of alderman.

My endeavor if elected will be to advance the interests of Prince Rupert in every way possible.

Thanking you in anticipation of your vote and influence, I am yours,

PETER McLACHLAN.

To the Electors of Ward 2

If you believe that during the past twelve months I have tried to serve you to the best of my ability, I ask for a continuance of the warm support which you gave me last year.

L. Bullock-Webster

Candidate for Ward 2

BIG MEETING OF WARD TWO ELECTORS HELD IN SKATING RINK LAST EVENING

statement of the mayor that it would have been wiser for the 1910 council to have gone slower and spread the work over a longer period of time, he asked the electors to compare the work that council inaugurated in the short seven months they were in office with what had been accomplished by the outgoing one. Why this continual prating about honesty? It was no credit to be honest if a man had all the advantages of a good bringing up. That should go without saying. It would be a credit to a man born in a slum with every environment tending to make him a thief, to maintain an attitude of rectitude. If the Mayor called him a grafter, then he would say that he was a liar. True, the mayor for very wise and sufficient reasons did not mention any names, but included the whole nine of them in the council in which he (the speaker) sat that year. He only wished he had mentioned him specifically, and he would know how to get redress through the law courts. With all his slanderous assertions he had never produced a vestige of proof. The mayor had accused them of having no platform and not knowing what they were going to do. One thing they did know anyhow, was whether they were going to run for Mayor or Alderman or not. How could they believe any of the latter's promises when he was so unstable and vacillating that they could not depend upon him two days together. No wonder he suffered from headaches. He was thinking of his own skin not the interests of the people. The speaker gave an experience of his own whilst in municipal politics in regard to the selling of municipal bonds, he having occupied the mayor's chair for four years. He showed how the personnel of the council did make a difference when approaching big financial concerns. It did not necessarily follow that a banker's advice was always the best. Asked if he would tell them what he proposed to do if elected, he said they hoped to have more time on Wednesday. He would say, however, that he would only tell them what they hoped they would be able to do, not what they would do, and then fall down and do nothing.

A. H. Allison.

A. H. Allison, one of the new candidates for Ward 2, in rising to address the audience said he was not going to criticize the actions of the past councils. This was going to be an extremely important year for Prince Rupert. All were looking forward most eagerly to the completion of the railroad. It behooved them to make every preparation for the great future that lay before them. He was an optimist and a great believer in making one's self heard. Advertising and publicity, when they had the goods to offer, was the essence of the business of building up a new city. Confidence must be established between the worker and employer. Harmony must be made to predominate. If this much to be desired state could not be brought about in a little community of a little over 5,000 people, then it was the first city he had known in which it could not be done. That was the only way to make things go. He spoke of the wonderful growth of Saskatoon during the last five or six years as an example for Prince Rupert to follow. Every encouragement and assistance should be given by the council to the local board of trade. The need of a recreation ground was most urgent. In conclusion, Mr. Allison said now is the accepted time; they should get together, forget the past and all pull together to make a city for themselves.

Alderman Dybhavn.

Alderman Dybhavn deplored the fact that apparently more time was given up to personalities than principles. He had no quarrel with anyone and only wanted to see justice and fair play. He criticized statements in The Daily News in regard to reports of a department over which he was the head. If elected he would do his utmost as in the past to serve their interests.

D. W. Sutherland.

D. W. Sutherland in a short address reiterated his previous declarations that if elected he would give the city his very best services toward the carrying out of a businesslike and progressive administration. Especially would his efforts be directed toward the interests of Ward 2. In answer to a question as to his attitude toward city franchises, he said he was out most unqualifiedly to defend them, also that he would spare no effort to bring any city work that had been already started to the quickest conclusion possible.

G. W. Nickerson.

G. W. Nickerson, who spoke with the assurance and aplomb of an old parliamentary debater, made an excellent speech. He opened by felicitating the ladies and complimenting them upon turning out in such numbers on such a cold night. Getting down to business, he asked if we cannot give any credence at this late hour to the Mayor's statement as to what he was going to run for, how could we possibly believe his long programme. He was not sincere. He wanted to slip in by acclamation if by some possible chance Mr. Pattullo was found unable to qualify. The Mayor accused them of being grafters. As Mr. Naden had said, there was no credit in being honest. He was only sorry that the Mayor was not present so that he could ask him what he himself had ever done that was not honest. The Mayor half the time did not know what he was talking about, wandering backward and forward, forgetting one minute what he had said the moment before. He was out, if elected, to turn his every attention to the wants of Ward 2. In reply to a question from Alderman Maitland as to who would be qualified to vote next year, he replied that they would be property owners. After some further heckling by the alderman, he concluded his speech by referring to his worthy friend in the language of the immortal Pitt that he could only hope that he (the speaker) "would acquire wisdom with age."

Alderman Maitland.

Alderman Maitland defended the actions of the present council in regard to adverse criticism as to the way they had handled the affairs of the city. Each council had the advantage of the experiences of the past, and he hoped that the council of 1913 would be able to do the work more cheaply than any of those in the past. Serious objection was taken to his statement that retaining walls could be built for 60 cents a yard, several practical men in the audience asserting that it could not be done.

Alderman Bullock-Webster.

Alderman Bullock-Webster spoke along the lines of his speeches at previous meetings. He could honestly say that he had done his best to perform the tasks allotted to him, and asked the electors if they appreciated his efforts to give him their support in the coming election for alderman in Ward 2.

Alderman Douglas.

Alderman Douglas again emphasized the fact that he was an honest man. If anyone had anything to say to the contrary let him come forth or forever hold his peace. As no one did, he must come to the conclusion that everything must be alright, as it was the usual custom to turn the rascals out. The present council had accomplished a great deal and had shown good value for the money they had expended. He was in favor of a good trunk sewer being laid down in Ward 2.

William Sibbald.

William Sibbald in a few words announced his candidature as an alderman for Ward 2.

T. D. Pattullo.

Mr. Pattullo in closing the meeting remarked that if the greater part of the work done in the municipality had been in Section 1, it had enhanced the values of the outlying sections 50 per cent. without it costing those sections a cent. Although the Mayor boasted that the 1912 council had spent $700,000, what had been done for Ward 2? What about the crazy monstrosity of a sewer proposition the council had brought forward? He (the speaker) believed that a sewer system could be evolved that would serve the needs of the city and yet not cost so much that the city could not handle it. He concluded by remarking that he hoped the city would elect a council that was in sympathy with him. The meeting closed with loud cheers for Mr. Pattullo.

The Horn Blower.

Chaufeur—Didn't you hear me blowing my horn?

Victim—Yes, but I thought perhaps you were a candidate for the presidency.

UNITED STATES SENDS ULTIMATUM TO MEXICO

President Taft States Positively that American Citizens in Mexico Must be Protected

New Orleans, La., Jan. 12—An ultimatum containing stinging comment on the manner in which the Mexican Government failed to keep its promises to protect American lives and property is on its way to President Madero this afternoon through Pedro Lescurrian, minister of foreign affairs of Mexico, who conferred here with Chairman William Alden Smith of the subcommittee of the senate foreign relations committee, which is conducting hearings here in regard to the troubles along the Mexican border.

The ultimatum makes plain the attitude of President Taft and says positively that the United States will enforce protection not only of American citizens but all foreigners in Mexico.

When Minister Lescurrian left here it was announced that he was going to Laredo, but later it developed that he had gone to El Paso, Texas. It is reliably reported that the ultimatum made the positive statement that the state of anarchy now prevailing in Mexico must cease.

In the ultimatum it is declared that of all the murders charged against persons who fled into the United States, not one conviction has been obtained, and that the Mexican authorities have been making wonderful use of the extradition power to further their own ends.

The clause in the document regarding the protection of foreigners in Mexico was inserted, it is understood, in response to the demands of other countries.

NEWTON.

(To the Tune of "Harrigan.")

Who is the man that the thinking ones are wild about?
"Newton!" (from the audience)
That's me!
Who'll fill each house in town with bags of gold all piled about?
"Newton!" That's me!
I'm proud of the boorish blood that's in me.
McBride is the only man to twin me.
N-E-double-You, T-O-N spells "Newton."
If I fill an aldermanic chair in thirteen
I'll keep the gang from robbing you—that's certain.
Who is the man that's so very often smiled about
"Newton!"—that's me!
