Prime Minister plans shelter in case of world warfare

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker plans to stick it out in Ottawa in the event of a nuclear attack rather than evacuate with other high officials to an emergency government headquarters outside the city.

He told the Commons Saturday that a basement fallout shelter, "identical with the one we have asked Canadians to put in their homes," is being constructed at his official residence on Sussex Street.

"That is where I shall be when and if war should come," he said during a national survival debate. "That is where I shall stay."

The prime minister, in a detailed and solemn statement on plans to cope with an all-out nuclear attack, also disclosed that estimates have placed the number of Canadians who would become casualties at 2,000,000 to 6,000,000. This would represent one-ninth to one-third of the country's 18,000,000 population.

PLAN EXERCISE

Mr. Diefenbaker informed the house that a national civil defence exercise, with as many Canadians as possible participating, will be held November 13, extending into November 14 so far as participation by governments is concerned.

This would be a follow-up to exercise Tocsin I, held in May, involving the emergency evacuation of high government, military and other personnel from Ottawa to Camp Oetawa, Ont. Shortcomings in emergency plans, disclosed by the earlier exercise, had since been remedied.

British actors threaten strike action against TV

LONDON (AP) — Britain's successful commercial television owners face the threat of an actors' strike.

Led by Equity, the actors' union, the performers want more money. Unless they get it, they say they will strike November 1.

Britain has two types of TV—commercial and the state-sponsored BBC which carries no advertising.

The commercial network, operating under the authority of Independent Television Authority, is made up of several companies. By agreement, some furnish the programs during the week and others during weekends.

Since their 1956 debut, the commercial television companies have made huge profits. But now commercial TV owners say their expenses are high and they think the demands by Equity are far out of line.

TALKS ENDED

"Their demands are so fantastic," said John Spencer Wills, "that negotiations are at an end."

Wills, chairman of Associated Redifusion, London weekday telecasters, told a meeting of stockholders that when ITV began broadcasting, the minimum for an actor on BBC was around $17.50.

"This," he explained, "was earned by an actor who walked on and said, 'My lord, the carriage awaits'."

"Equity now demands a minimum of 36 guineas ($105.84) for a comparable actor," said Wills.

Equity wants a minimum of 44 guineas ($129.36) for an actor speaking more than 10 words.

Gerald Croasdell, Equity's general secretary, said Equity wants supplementary payment proportionate to the extra audience available to independent television — an estimated 10,000,000 sets compared with 1,000,000 in 1956.

Directors for trial today

BRANDON (CP)—Toronto businessmen Hugh Paton and D. Hubert Cox go on trial here this afternoon on a charge of conspiring to steal $460,000 from Brandon Packers Limited.

The trial opened June 5, but was adjourned by Mr. Justice A. M. Monnin of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench at the request of defence counsel. The judge agreed that the defence needed more time to prepare.

Paton, 40, and Cox, 45, were arrested in Toronto last Jan. 12 and were committed for trial in May. Five hundred documents were entered as exhibits and 25 witnesses were called at the preliminary hearing.

The men have been free on bail of $25,000 each since being brought to Winnipeg.

STEMMED FROM STRIKE

Their arrests followed a six-months strike last year at the Brandon packing plant. A provincial royal commission investigated the strike and as a result, the commissioner, Mr. Justice G. E. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Appeal, recommended a special investigation which led to the arrests.

The offence is alleged to have occurred between January 1, 1956, and November 30, 1960. During that time the men were principal owners of Great West Saddlery Company Limited, the parent company of Brandon Packers.

Last Thursday in Toronto they announced the sale of their interests in Great West and its holdings to a Toronto group.

Paton, born in Prince Edward Island, was vice-president and a director of Brandon Packers and president of Great West Saddlery at the time of his arrest. Cox, a native of England, was president of Brandon Packers and executive of Great West.

One man safe after air crash

VANCOUVER (CP)— One man was killed and another battled his way to safety during the weekend when a light seaplane crashed into Dorothy Lake, 140 miles north of here.

Killed was owner-pilot Melvin Curran of Vancouver. His plane overturned when he attempted to land on the Cariboo district Lake Saturday.

Everett Abbey, also of Vancouver, fought clear of the wreckage and swam to shore.

He suffered minor injuries and was flown here Sunday aboard a B.C. Airlines plane.

Both men were Canadian Pacific Airlines pilots.

Skindivers recovered Curran's body Sunday and it was taken to Williams Lake, B.C.

Confusion over the whereabouts of Abbey developed Saturday night following the crash when the crew aboard an RCAF air-sea rescue plane could not locate him when they were ready to return home.

Television outlawed

VANCOUVER (CP) — No television. That's the rule at Vancouver's city jail. The friend of a man arrested Thursday night as an impaired driving suspect was politely told this when he appeared with a portable television set, saying: "Please take this to my pal. . . ."

Government skims cream

HALIFAX (CP) A decline in the domestic market for dairy products is "the direct result of excessive and ever-increasing governmental intervention and control," the National Dairy Council of Canada was told today.

President Pierre Cote said it is time that governments got out of the dairy business.

Addressing the opening of the council's 44th annual meeting, he said the problem facing the Canadian dairy industry is under-consumption, not over-production.

"I say to you that the accelerating loss of our domestic market for butter and fresh fluid milk is the direct result of excessive and ever - increasing governmental intervention and control which has been inflicted on our industry since the end of the Second World War," he declared.

The time has come when governments should clean up the surplus mess which their policies have created and then get out of the business."
