Opening lead: King of ♦

Declarer did not quite give his all in today's hand, though he felt himself to be a victim of bad breaks.

Against the four spade contract West opened the king of diamonds. East overtook with his ace and continued the suit. West played a third round which East ruffed and declarer overruffed.

Trumps were drawn in three rounds and declarer, at this point enjoyed a healthy position. He had several chances for his contract. If clubs broke three-three, dummy's fourth club would provide a parking place for one of South's hearts.

If clubs failed to oblige, the heart finesse, an even chance, was held in reserve.

Accordingly, South ducked a club into the East hand. But after he won the return, on the third round of the suit, West showed out. So declarer fell back on the heart finesse, which lost to West's doubleton queen.

North commiserated with partner, pointing out that no flaw was to be found in his technique inasmuch as he had given himself two chances. Actually, however, perfect technique could have obviated the necessity for the heart guess.

The hand was subject to an easy count. At trick three West is marked with six diamonds and East with two. Three tricks later it becomes known that West had three spades and East two. At this point declarer should cash his last trump, discarding a heart from dummy. East, in order to hold his club protection, must discard another heart. Now declarer passes the first club trick to East, and on the return of the suit dummy cashes the ace and king. On the third round of clubs West shows out, and the count is now complete. West is known to have started with two clubs, hence with only two hearts.

The heart king is now played, followed by dummy's remaining heart and, when East follows with the ten, declarer plays his ace with complete confidence. He knows that East's remaining card is a club and that West's doubleton queen must fall.

Four businesses destroyed in fire

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A hardware store, owned by sons of Premier Bennett, and three other businesses were destroyed in a $500,000 fire here Sunday night.

A nut and candy shop, a children's wear store and a jewelry shop were housed in the same building with the hardware.

Firemen said the loss would be around $500,000, although value of merchandise in the stores had not been confirmed by owners.

SPANISH HISTORY

Corunna in Spain, from where the Armada sailed in 1588, was at its peak as a seaport and textile centre in the late middle ages.

SEEKS LEADERSHIP — Real Caouette of Rouyn, Que., leader of the Quebec branch of the Social Credit Party (Ralliement de Creditistes), lost the national leadership of the party at an Ottawa convention July 4-7. He was born at Amos, Que., in September, 1937. He ran unsuccessfully twice before being elected in Pontiac in a 1946 byelection for the House of Commons. He did not seek re-election in the 1949 general election. — CP Photo
