China strives to produce goods

PEKING (Reuters) — The South China Sewing Machine Company is housed in a collection of weatherbeaten, ramshackle buildings on the banks of the Pearl River in Canton.

Its equipment and machine tools are largely homemade; more than 40 per cent of the work is done by hand and there is little resemblance to the production line techniques of a modern factory.

But this year the South China company hopes to turn out almost 100,000 sewing machines for sale at home and abroad.

Though the factory is down-at-heel and laboring under considerable difficulties, it is a striking example of how China is striving to produce more light industrial goods for domestic and export sales.

The four sewing machine models produced by the factory were prominently displayed at the Canton trade fair this spring when China put its best industrial foot forward to attract foreign buyers and win valuable foreign exchange.

Benny wows Russians

LENINGRAD (Reuters) — Benny Goodman and his orchestra ended their tour in this city before more than 5,000 fans Sunday night — when stewards switched out the indoor arena's lighting. The audience went frantic with delight at this fifth and final concert. The band played encores lasting an hour.

RCMP form wildlife squad

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP has formed a five-man squad of wildlife crime-busters to work in uniform and undercover among Canada's waterfowl hunters.

The squad, first in the history of the force, will fan out this fall in search of the big game among offenders.

They will concentrate on the rapidly growing and lucrative practice of hunting waterfowl on a commercial basis — a practice strictly forbidden by federal law.

The Mounties, who will wear inconspicuous hunting jackets more often than their red coats, will be in the tradition of the force's long-established anti-narcotic squads — expert in their field and concentrating full time on the one type of law-breaking.

The five Mounties, hand-picked from a pool of volunteers, have completed a three-week course conducted by the Canadian Wildlife Service.
