RCMP comes from behind to win

CHARLES GIORDANO

Sports Editor of The Daily News A Powell River News reporter writing under the name of "halfback" was certainly crying the blues about soccer conditions in Prince Rupert in the July 9 issue of that paper, "They were bruised, scratched, minus plenty of skin and with at least one player on the injured list while others were merely sore all over," is the way he describes the Powell River team on returning home from their July 1 exhibition match with the local all-stars.

Halfback says "Their (Prince Rupert) brand of ball, according to the startled Powell Riverites, is rough, tough, and hard on the anatomy. But the spectators really eat it up." "The 1,200 spectators who watched the two clubs fight to a 2-2 draw were enthusiastic, swarming onto the playing field several times to dispute decisions." Speaking of the injured player, Pete Deen, Halfback said "He was put out of the game in the first 10 minutes of play by Prince Rupert's Mario Petri, who sailed into Pete's leg at knee level with both boots high and no chance to play the ball."

"No whistle was blown on the play." However, nowhere in this write-up of the game did "halfback" tell of the unsportsmanlike manner in which his home town team conducted themselves after this rugged affair was over. This writer had the opportunity of photographing the two teams together, immediately after which the Powell River boys left Algoma Park in disgust, not uttering a word of the game to anyone. They were obviously completely fed up: On the other hand, this writer will agree with halfback regarding rough conditions, but after all soccer is reasonably new to Prince Rupert and I'm sure that as the brand of ball improves so will the facilities. At least we hope they will. Maybe the Rupert boys did hand out some rough playing but Halfback neglected to mention equally rough plays by the Powell River squad. In summing up one would be given the strong impression that the Powell River team, who came here with a nice record of wins from other top lower mainland teams, thought they had the game in the bag and when only able to tie the locals felt more than upset and went home crying.

Maybe within the near future the Prince Rupert boys could travel to Powell River and find out just what cooks.

Among numerous celebrations coinciding with the Queen's visit to Terrace this weekend will be a little something for the sports fan. To be held for the first time in Terrace is a baseball tournament with prizes totalling $1,000—of which 500 smackers will go to the team winding up in first place.

The tourney, like the rest held in this area, will be straight elimination, meaning that the first four teams to lose can head home as they will be right out.

Teams which have already placed entries for this competition are the Prince Rupert All Stars, Terrace Hotel, Terrace's Sande Lumber Mills, Kitimat Vikings, Hazelton Clippers, Smithers Tyees, Quesnel Lumberman and the Prince George Columbus Club.

First game will take place at 9 a.m. Saturday. The Prince Rupert team will play their first game at 1 p.m. The tourney will end Sunday. So if you happen to be going to Terrace for the Queen's visit drop in at the baseball field either Saturday or Sunday. Incidentally, better take a lunch. There may be thousands of boxing fans, who after the world's heavyweight championship fight last month between Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johannson, may now have no more confidence in Patterson but there's still one who is right behind him.

Rocky Marciano, former heavyweight title holder said recently that "Everyone knows Patterson is a better fighter. Johannson doesn't have much else than his right hand and Floyd should watch that this time." The Rock also squashed rumors that he intends to make comeback in hopes of regaining the title. "Rumors started after my appearance at the last title fight that I was thinking of coming back," said Rocky. "But my plans haven't changed I'm retired and I plan to stay that way. Everything is going pretty good and God willing I'll do well as I am." Parents of, boys who took part in a rugged "Tarzan" contest in the Parks Playground program last Friday night are looking askance at the prize awarded winner Larry Bowman. After scrambling up poles and trees and under benches Larry was presented by Recreation Director Tom Masich, with pair of women's pantics, "Tarzan-type" of course.
