The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Double	Pass	2 ♣
2 ♥	3 ♣	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♣

When declarer has a side suit which requires development it is usually sound tactics to postpone the extraction of trumps. South in today's hand would have done well to heed this principle, particularly since his main line of transportation was concentrated in the trump suit.

The bidding was of the strongly competitive variety. Altho North's raise of his partner's secondary bid to three hearts with only three small trumps is admittedly irregular, it must be conceded that he was hard put to find a satisfactory call.

Against the four heart contract, West opened the ace of clubs and, when declarer's king dropped, a second club was led and ruffed in the closed hand. It was obvious to South that the success of the contract hinged on development of the spade suit, but fearing an adverse ruff he hastened to draw two rounds of trump first. The queen of hearts was left outstanding.

Declarer established the spade suit next by cashing the king, ace, and ruffing the third round. A club ruff put South back in his hand to run the good spades. West merely held off trumping in with his queen of trumps, discarding the ten and queen of diamonds instead. When declarer finally led a diamond, West was in with the ace. He drew the remaining trumps with his queen of hearts and the queen of clubs took the setting trick.

Had declarer not been in such haste to extract trumps, he could have retained control of the hand. It was quite all right to play one high heart, but the spades should have been established next. The king and ace are cashed and, when the third round is ruffed, there is a trump left in dummy with which to return to declarer's ace. South now has time to lead up to the king of diamonds in order to establish a trick in that suit, for he still has two hearts left and West is able to draw only one round of trumps when he is in with the ace of diamonds.
