Pros prepare for Canadian golf open

MONTREAL (CP) — The big-time pros practice today for the Canadian Open golf championship and indications are they could rip par to shreds when the firing starts in earnest Thursday.

Par over the Laval-sur-le-Lac course is 36-36—72. But its 6,555 yards are not rated as among the most difficult in Canada.

On the basis of the performances turned in Tuesday by a flock of golf's lesser lights in a qualifying round, many observers predicted a final score of 16 under par would walk off with the first-place $4,300 of the $30,000 prize money.

Only six of the qualifiers broke par Tuesday but observers were betting the long-hitting pros, eligible automatically on the basis of their previous performances, would find the course to their liking.

Ninety - nine players out of Tuesday's field of 140 qualified to join the 57 automatically eligible for Thursday's starting field of 156.

That bunch will be cut to the first 100 and ties Saturday and then to the first 60 and ties for Sunday's final round.

Among those going out today for their first real look at the course, are Gary Player, winner of the United States PGA championship Sunday at Philadelphia, and Bob Goalby, runner-up to Player.

Higher prices boost value of fish landings

VANCOUVER (CP) — Higher prices this season pushed up the June value of fish landings in British Columbia although catches were generally smaller.

Salmon accounted for 47 per cent of the landings, halibut 43 per cent. The landed value of both was $4,371,000.

Down nine per cent on last year, the salmon landings were worth $2,095,000. Coho landings of 2,500,000 pounds were down 22 per cent. Sockeye landings of 1,220,000 were down four per cent.

Halibut landings weighing 5,960,000 were down 18 per cent although the value rose to $1,876,000 and a 27 per cent increase.

The golden retriever, one of the best dogs for recovering game, was developed in England from Russian tracker dogs.
