"After Grade 13, What?" is topic

VANCOUVER (CP) — A conference on the theme "After Grade 13, What?", previously planned for Prince George Feb. 9, has been rescheduled to March 23, conference chairman Mrs. G. C. Kellett announced today.

She said the change was made to take advantage of material from University of British Columbia president John B. Macdonald's report of higher education, which will be released early this year.

The public conference is sponsored by North Central Alumni Association branches.

Russians bounce radar signals

WASHINGTON (CP) — Soviet scientists say they have bounced radar signals off the planet Mercury — a scientific breakthrough the United States is reported to have passed up in favor of a try for a tougher target, Mars.

An announcement of the Soviet accomplishment last summer was made today by the Soviet Academy of Sciences through the Russian embassy here.

At the time of the experiment, Mercury was between 52,000,000 and 54,000,000 miles from earth. Success was achieved, the Soviet announcement said, by using improved sending and receiving equipment and the "latest methods of detecting weak signals."

Detailed results of the radar observations will be published in scientific journals, said the embassy, which did not elaborate on what new equipment or methods the Russians used.

The Soviets said the results of the Mercury experiment suggest that the planet's surface reflects about the same amount of radio waves as the surface of the moon. But the significance of that, as far as the surface properties of Mercury are concerned, was not made clear.

U.S., British and Soviet scientists had previously bounced signals off the moon and Venus.

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Robert Menzies today celebrates a record 13 years as federal prime minister without a break—followed Thursday by his 68th birthday. He has outstripped the 15 other Australian prime ministers since federation in 1901, both in terms of continuous and interrupted periods in office.
