SWIMMING AND LIFE SAVING

Classes to be Formed in Charge of J. Day Bell for Instructional Purposes.

The question of the formation of swimming and life-saving classes was discussed at some length last night at the annual meeting of the Prince Rupert Rupert Swimming Club by J. Day Bell and others. It was suggested that classes should be formed at once. For swimming two or three land lessons was sufficient before taking to the water, but for the life saving it was better to have more drills. Swimming could be taught in about half a dozen lessons. Mr. Day Bell said he had given up football and was intending to devote his time to swimming and would give lessons every night in the week if necessary. It was desirable that adults and children should learn. The fatality of last year might have been prevented if those present had understood the art of resuscitation.

The use of waterwings, it was explained, were a detriment rather than an aid to swimming.

Mr. Day Bell was appointed instructor by the club with the idea that classes are to be formed at once. He will be assisted by D. K. Goyer, who is also an enthusiast in this line.

It was further suggested that an impetus would be given to the game of water polo. Some of the mounted police were players and it was understood that the drydock would be ready with a team.

It was further suggested that if possible a representative should be sent to take part in swimming races at Victoria in the summer.

Skeena River arrivals yesterday included J. G. Dolman, Port Edward; A. W. Carter, Oceanic; W. F. Binns, Balmoral, and Mrs. J. P. McMillan, Balmoral.

Mrs. Furoth Has a Special Way

Perhaps other cooks have used Pacific Milk in the same way. At any rate this is the right method.

When Mrs. Furoth is mixing up a cake, say it calls for 1 cup of milk. She takes first ½-cup of water and adds Pacific Milk to fill the cup.

It is much better to pour the milk into water than to put water into ½-cup of milk.

Which way do you dilute Pacific Milk?
