FIRE INSURANCE is a hobby of ours. We take keen pleasure in making sure that all policies are so written that they cover your property exactly as you intend. If you entrust your fire insurance to careless, inexperienced or ignorant agents you may find, when you come to collect your fire loss, that your policies are so worded that the insurance company is not liable and so will not pay the loss. Why take chances?

NEW MORALITY IN GERMANY

Changes in Family Life—Decrease in Marriages.

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—There is a revolution in progress in Germany which has hitherto met with little comment, because it is less visible to the naked eye than any of the other upheavals to be observed here since 1918. Nevertheless, more far-reaching results may well be expected of it than of many more noisy signs of disintegration. Nothing more or less than the advisability, sanctity, and permanency of the marriage tie is in question, with its whole endless chain of consequence in relation to the foundation of the State.

Sock Darners Wanted.

Though it has been impossible hitherto to obtain completely accurate statistics of the birthrate since the war, the number of marriages celebrated in the early months of the Republic was entirely satisfactory from the point of view of all eager to reconstruct and re-people an exhausted country. An increase over former years was attributed to the unpleasaniness of restaurant life, and the exorbitant price for sock-darning demanded of the bachelor, the fact being taken for granted that the girls were always willing to accept upon demand. Strangely enough, it is now the reluctance of the female population upon which the decrease of marriages in 1921 is based. The German woman, more slave to tradition than in any other of the Northern countries of Europe—who has been known in her more enlightened, or rather desperate moments, to invest the imperial doctrine of church, children, cooking, and clothes with such glorified terms as ethics, psychology, kitchen chemistry, and the expression of individuality—is rapidly becoming the pioneer of what can only be termed the new morality. In short, the "bon ami" is rapidly taking the place of the husband, and the menage a deux that of the well-regulated domestic establishment.

The desperate dissipation of Berlin has nothing to do with these new conditions visible everywhere to the pryer beneath the surface and very soon to be apparent to all the world. It is the most sedate and sensible women of all, daughters and sisters of the academic class, who are yielding to the pressure of circumstances.

Large Income Necessary.

Economic conditions are such in Germany that only a very large income can provide for the family. The wife, willing to be a wage earner, loses, in spite of revolutionary decrees protecting the married woman worker, as often as not a remunerative position on her marriage. Moreover, greatest consideration of all in a country where the bride not only provides household linen but furniture as well, the war-widow whose hand is eagerly sought on account of her snug little home, loses her pension. There seems only one solution to the exigencies of daily life, and that is being universally adopted. It is surprising how swiftly accepted codes of morality change after a few highly-respected individuals have dared to take the plunge, within the limits of a small community. That this community is rapidly increasing can only point to the effects, insidious or otherwise, example following upon a general upheaval of everything and anything affecting the domestic life of a nation.

Decline in Birth Rate.

The decline in the birthrate already apparent is due far more to this cause than to the considerations of expense generally accepted. The fight raging against the Socialist doctrine of open propaganda for limiting the population by means hitherto regarded as illegal—meetings in support of such measures are now advertised largely at every street-corner in Berlin—have not yet succeeded in greatly influencing individual views. It seems the State interference is powerless in non-Catholic countries. But at this time of year, glancing through the advertisement columns of the big dailies, when with true German sentiment "Christmas Wishes" looms largely, the decline in seekers after matrimony in comparison with former seasons strike one as significant. The "gentleman of imposing presence and assured circumstances" looking for a wife this week "with dark hair, figure plump and full, a furnished flat, and ample means" is quite an exception.

WANT SMOKING CARS ON TORONTO STREETS

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—With the three ladies present voting in favor of the motion and only one man out of all present dissenting, the Central Ratepayers' Association has decided to send a deputation to the Toronto Transportation Commission praying for the inauguration of a smoking car service in connection with the present system.

"This is possibly a little extreme," admitted J. M. Skelton, in introducing the matter, and added that it is not, however, a restriction but rather a privilege.

The speaker was of the opinion that the rush hour cars at terminal points could be classified as smoking and non-smoking and that, as they run at those times in almost constant succession on the more important lines, no retarding of the service to the public would result. He strongly championed the right of the working man to commence and end his working day with the solace of some form of nicotine.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN KING OF BELGIUM

Illegitimate Son of Late King Leopold Visiting in Vienna.

VIENNA, Dec. 29.—A "distinguished foreigner" arrived in Vienna a few days ago Baron Lucien Philippe Marie Vaughan, a youth of seventeen, the illegitimate son of th late King Leopold of Belgium, who, with his instructor, is on a journey through Central Europe. This young man recalls the romantic affair of King Leopold, who, as an old man of seventy-two, fell in love with Caroline Lacroix, a porter's daughter, bought her Larnoix Castle, near Paris, where he spent most of his time and surrounded the lady with princely splendor. Making her the "Baroness of Vaughan," he was wedded to her by the Court chaplain in the private chapel of his castle at Laeken.

In 1905, at the Cape Ferrat Castle, on the Riviera, she had a son, the lad who is now visiting Vienna; in the birth register is the entry:—"Father unknown." Despite this modesty the King's three daughters were greatly upset, as they and others suspected that little Lucien Philippe Marie would be the future King of the Belgians, for, according to the Belgian Constitution, all classes are equal before the law, and there is no such thing as "morganatic marriage." But to attain this end King Leopold would have had to undergo civil marriage with Caroline Lacroix, without which the wedding was invalid. For unknown reasons the King did not do so.

SAVAGE SOW KILLED AND DEVOURED BOY

PARIS, Dec. 29.—A farmer of Jamagne, having surprised a little boy in the act of stealing apples from his orchard, succeeded in catching the child and for punishment shut him up in a piggsy together with a sow. He remained deaf to the terrified cries of the boy, but when a few hours later he came to set the child at liberty a horrible sight greeted his eyes. The sow was engaged in devouring the corpse of the unfortunate child. The farmer, who was nearly lynched by the crowd which gathered on the scene, has been arrested.
