TEAR BOMBS ARE USED AT KINGSTON

CAPTAIN DAN DONALD DROPS DEAD IN VANCOUVER

Drastic Steps Taken When Prisoners Show Rather Sullen Mood

Attempt at Insubordination is Put Down—Investigation Continuing Today With Troops Keeping Guard at Penitentiary

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 24:—Authorities at Portsmouth Penitentiary today admitted that tear gas bombs had been used Saturday to quell insubordination among prisoners who had engaged in the two riots at the institution last week. Definite confirmation of the use of tear gas came in the face of a statement in Ottawa by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, that he had "no such report."

Explanation of the failure of Mr. Guthrie to receive the report on the new step to quiet the sullen half of nine hundred prisoners was found in a statement that Brigadier-General D. M. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, was not in the prison at the time the tear gas was used on Saturday.

While General Ormond's man-to-man investigation was resumed today, fifty members of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery stood guard working in 12-hour shifts.

Life Insurance in Canada Stands Up To Every Demand

MONTREAL, Oct. 24:—Life insurance companies in Canada have withstood the economic turmoil of the Great War of 1914, the influenza epidemic of 1918; they are now standing up strongly against the present economic depression, and all merit the confidence of the Canadian public for the stable way in which their affairs have been handled. So affirmed G. D. Finlayson, Dominion Superintendent of Insurance when, addressing members of the Life Underwriters' Association of Montreal at a luncheon meeting held in the Queen's Hotel, he lauded the structure of life insurance companies in the Dominion as "safeguarding and encouraging."

"The companies have proved," he declared, "that they could stand up well against war, pestilence and now economic depression. The only thing that remains to be demonstrated is as to whether or not they can stand up against prosperity. This does not seem a hard thing to do. But we must remember that it was in a period of prosperity that the seeds of depression were sown. When prosperity returns, we must see if we can devise means by which another economic crisis of this kind can be averted."

PASSING OF SHIPMASTER

Capt. Dan Donald, Veteran Navigator of Pacific Coast, Dies Suddenly at Vancouver

Long Service

Commander of Steamer Prince Rupert Had Been Over 20 Years With C. N. Steamships

Numerous friends and acquaintances in Prince Rupert will be shocked to learn of the sudden death at Vancouver on Saturday afternoon of Capt. Daniel Donald,

Dies Suddenly

veteran navigator of this coast and commodore of the Canadian National Steamships coastal fleet, who succumbed to heart failure on the dock at Vancouver shortly after having landed his regular command, the steamer Prince Rupert, following her weekly voyage up the coast. According to word received by local officials of the company, it was only a matter of a few minutes after the landing of the ship that Capt. Donald expired. He had been here with his ship last week sailing on Thursday night for Vancouver.

The late Capt. Donald, who was 61 years of age and a native of Scotland, had served as an officer with the Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Service, later Canadian National Steamships, for upwards of twenty years, joining the company in the capacity of a mate and advancing steadily in the service until he became senior captain or commodore of the fleet several years ago. During his long service with the company, he commanded practically all vessels of the fleet including the old Henriette, Prince Albert, Prince John, Prince George, Prince Rupert and Prince Henry. He was known as one of the most competent and efficient steamship masters on the Pacific Coast. This, together with his long experience and wide familiarity with navigating conditions on the coast, led to his being entrusted with a number of special missions for the company including a trip to the Old Country several years ago which led to the purchase by Canadian National Steamships of the steamer Prince Charles.

A prominent member of the Masonic craft and a Shriner, the late Capt. Donald is survived by a widow and daughter, Miss Florence Donald, residing in Vancouver. The funeral took place in Vancouver today.

Funeral Is Held

VANCOUVER, Oct. 24— The funeral of Captain Dan Donald, commodore of the Pacific Coast fleet of the Canadian National steamships, who died suddenly on Saturday afternoon, was held this afternoon from Centre and Hanna's chapel to the Masonic plot in the Mountain View Cemetery. Captain Donald was a member of Mount Hermon Lodge and the funeral was held under lodge auspices. The body of the late skipper was borne to the grave by shipmates—Captain D. McKinnon, chief officer; Jack Crawford and Norman MacLean, pursers; Alex Monroe, chief engineer; David Todd, second engineer, and John Walker, chief steward.

Captain Donald had been in the service of the company more than 21 years. He docked his ship on time on Saturday and was met at the foot of the gang plank by Thomas Louden, Pacific Coast manager, who discussed with him the moving of the ship over the week-end. While in the act of turning back to the ship, Captain Donald plunged forward and had passed away before medical aid could be summoned. He was 61 years of age and was born in Greenock, Scotland. He was one of the best known and most popular masters on the Pacific Coast.

BEAR TOOK CAMP GOODS

Wolf Was Killed

Local Nimrods Disturbed By Howling at Rainbow Lake and Got Iron Grey Pelt

During the week-end Leon Blain, Theo Fortune and Joe MacDonald were in the vicinity of Rainbow Lake dismantling their fishing camp and they made the discovery that a bear had visited their tent, tearing his way through the canvas. He had chewed up a pound tin of coffee and spilled the contents all about, and had demolished a package of shredded wheat. Mr. Blain brought in the coffee can, showing marks of the bear's teeth in it.

The lakes and creeks are very high and trout fishing is poor, the party reports.

While scouting around Mr. Fortune ran into a pack of wolves. He had time for only one shot which was a direct hit and was successful in bringing down a large iron grey timber wolf. The wolves seem to be very plentiful and they howled around the camp all night.
