MOVES MADE TO END DEPRESSION

LIBERAL POLICIES REVIEWED BY LEADER OF OPPOSITION

Bumper Meeting Hears Pattullo Discourse on Provincial Questions

Unemployment Relief, Governmental Finances and Taxation, Redistribution and Pacific Great Eastern Are Among Topics Discussed at Meeting

Policies of the Liberal party in regard to unemployment relief, governmental finances and taxation, redistribution, the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and a number of other public matters of importance were discussed by T. D. Pattullo, Member of the Legislature for Prince Rupert and Leader of the British Columbia Opposition, in addressing last night in the Moose Hall one of the largest public meetings which has been held in Prince Rupert in recent years. So large was the attendance that, even before the appointed time of opening, provision had to be made for additional seating accommodation. Mr. Pattullo spoke for about an hour and a half and was given a warm reception and attentive hearing. In view of the fact that no election campaign is in progress, the large size of the attendance might be taken as a token of the interest which is taken by Prince Rupert people in public affairs and as a personal tribute to Mr. Pattullo. W. O. Fulton occupied the chair and spoke very briefly in introducing Mr. Pattullo.

In opening, Mr. Pattullo stated that it was not his intention to dwell at length upon the deficiencies of the Tolmie administration which were all too well known. To do so would seem too much like "flogging a dead horse."

As for partyism, Mr. Pattullo agreed that rabid partizanship should be dead but not partyism. "The Liberal party," Mr. Pattullo declared, "exists not as a machine organization for the benefit of the party or a few individuals but for the purpose of advising the public from time to time on questions of sound public policy."

Liberal thought, Mr. Pattullo predicted, was soon going to take possession of the world. He pointed to the fact that President-Elect Roosevelt of the United States claimed to be a "liberal."

Legislation of the Liberal government of British Columbia from 1916 to 1928 had been replete with measures designed for the benefit of the intimate life of the people, Mr. Pattullo asserted. As a member of that administration he had no apologies to offer for the legislation it had been responsible for.

"While no one knows better than myself," said Mr. Pattullo, "the desirability of a government balancing its budget, it must be remembered that government is not business but it is the duty of government to supervise the welfare of the people. Government cannot be conducted entirely along business lines."

Mr. Pattullo asked his audience if it was not peculiar that, during the last four years, the opposition had always voted on behalf of the mass of the people while the government had voted consistently on the side of special interests.

Liberal Platform

Mr. Pattullo then turned his attention and dealt at some length with the recent convention of the Liberal party in Vancouver at which the platform of the party had been formulated. He referred to the fact that it had been the largest political convention ever held in the province. Some twenty-six or twenty-seven resolutions which had been evolved formed the Liberal platform on general subjects.

One resolution had recommended that a measure of state health insurance be effected at the earliest possible date. One object of this was to bring about a betterment of conditions for the people and another to decrease the cost of treating people in institutions.

Speaking on the subject of education, upon which the convention had passed a resolution favoring the establishment of proper relations between school boards, the municipalities and the education department and the making of a survey of the educational system of the province with a view to bringing about improvements, Mr. Pattullo asserted that he was not in favor of reducing the school age or making the people pay for education now being given in the schools.

In the matter of taxation, Mr. Pattullo pointed out that the party had gone on record as favoring a review and overhaul of the whole structure of provincial taxation. The party had also recorded itself as being in favor of the smaller wages and salaries being exempted from taxes. The one percent tax of the Tolmie government Mr. Pattullo described as iniquitous, being a tax that even newsboys were subject to pay.

The Liberal party also felt that the province of British Columbia had just claims along the line of equality with other provinces and this was a matter which would be taken up with the federal authorities if the party came into power.

In regard to finance, the Liberal policy, Mr. Pattullo declared, was one of keeping current expenditure in line with current revenue so that there would not be deficits. The Kidd report or anything else notwithstanding, Mr. Pattullo declared that, during the twelve years of Liberal regime in this province, there had been deficits as between current revenue and current expenditure only in two years and then the total was only half a million

PARTY AT LOW EBB

Republicanism in United States Will Undoubtedly Call For New Deal Following Election

NEW YORK, Nov. 16— A new deal, particularly in the matter of leadership with the introduction of new and more youthful blood, will undoubtedly be called for by the Republican party following the route of the Grand Old Party in the national election last week.

The crushing defeat inflicted upon Smoot of Utah, Jones of Washington, Moses of New Hampshire and such other veteran leaders was most significant.

Never before in the history of the country have the fortunes of Republicans been at such a low ebb.

Pilot William S. Grey of New York and his Fairchild plane, which is being shipped to Alaska to be reassembled following a crash at Telkwa, left for the north on the Princess Norah this morning. Fairbanks is the destination of the pilot and plane.

Economic Consortium Between Britain, Germany and France Is Announced Today in Paris

Loan of $680,000,000 to Be Offered to Provide Work in Smaller Depressed Countries With Prospect That Larger Ones Will Derive Direct and Immediate Benefit

PARIS, Nov. 16:—Formation of a tripartite economic consortium among France, Germany and Great Britain was announced today by Raymond Patenotre, Under Secretary for National Economy. The first project will be the offering of a seventeen billion franc loan for the electrification of railways in Poland, Roumania, Iraq and Portugal. The sum is equivalent to approximately $680,000,000.

The Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune said that France and Great Britain each would provide forty percent of the loan and Germany twenty percent. M. Patenotre said that guarantees as to insurance, security and non-competition in industrial bidding would constitute the underlying principles of the organzation.

"We foresee a return to prosperity by the natural process of development of industrialization," M. Patenotre said. "The unemployed in smaller, depressed countries will be given work while the jobless in larger countries will be relieved by the operation of factories."

"Less Business in Government and More Government in Business," Urges Opposition Leader

Depression Plan

Urges National Board With a View to Restoring Purchasing Power and Good Times

"Less business in government and more government in business" was the prescription for the curing of the present depression which was offered by T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Opposition for British Columbia and Member of the Legislature for Prince Rupert, in a luncheon address before the Prince Rupert Gyro Club on Tuesday. Mr. Pattullo predicted that, out of the present condition of world affairs, would soon emerge a state of "socialized capitalism."

As a means of bringing about a permanent improvement, Mr. Pattullo stated that he would set up in Canada a national board to cooperate and collaborate with industry with a view to bringing about better relations between production and consumption, creating a wider spread of employment with a working day of less hours and working week of less days and paying a rate of wages adequate to provide such a standard of living as science and invention has made possible.

As a means of immediate although temporary relief, Mr. Pattullo said he would lay out a scheme of large public works of essential and desirable character which he would use the national credit to finance so that practically all those who were being looked after by the government today would be given work at reasonable wages resulting in a restoration of their purchasing power and a stimulation of business.

"If there was another war tomorrow, there would be inflation such as there was in the last war. Every last man and every last dollar would be used to win the war. In peace are we going to allow things to drift so that the whole constitution is in danger of becoming subverted?" asked Mr. Pattullo.

Mr. Pattullo decried the principle of the dole as a means of unemployment relief and, while admitting that some revision of the present economic system seemed necessary, declared that he would rather live under the capitalistic system, with its wonderful individual freedom, rather than under a socialistic state where the individual was nothing but a pawn.

Believes in Two Parties

Mr. Pattullo defended the two-party system of government and compared the United States, a two-party country, where 120,000,000

AMY MAKES GOOD TIME

Flies Thirteen Hundred Miles Non-Stop Across Sahara to Land at Gao on Niger River

Flying Today

Bids Fair to Achieve Her Ambition of Beating Husband's Time For Flight to Capetown

DAKAR, Senegal, French West Africa, Nov. 16:—Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, successfully crossed the Sahara Desert yesterday, landing at Gao on the upper Niger River, and took off today for Duala on the Gulf of Guinea. She had intended to get as far south as Niamey but was obliged to stop at Gao, about two hundred miles short of that point. The flight to Duala is three hundred miles. On landing there, the route will follow the coast, a distance of nearly three thousand miles, to Capetown.

It is now believed that Amy has a good chance of beating the record of her husband for the flight from England to Capetown. She gained considerable time by not stopping at Comomb Bechar on the edge of the Sahara Desert. Her husband, on his flight, halted there before setting out across the desert.

The course from Oran to Gao yesterday was over 1300 miles of desert wastes. Lack of news of the aviatrix for thirty hours caused considerable anxiety.

Interior Weather
