Guide to Correspondents

The Daily News welcomes correspondence on live topics of the day or any other subject of public interest, but letters must be brief and to the point. The long-winded correspondent has no place in modern journalism.

Every letter must be signed by the writer, not necessarily for publication but as a matter of good faith and courtesy. All unsigned documents go to the waste paper basket. Letters of a caustic character must have the signature appended for publication.

Letter should be written on one side of the paper only. Correspondents must avoid personalities and the language should be such as would be allowed in the ordinary rules of debate.

HOSPITAL PROBLEMS

Matters Discussed at Convention Referred to Local Board's Attention

A number of problems in regard to hospital finance and administration which came up at the convention of the British Columbia Hospitals Association in Vancouver last fall were placed before the local hospital board at its meeting last night by the chairman of the finance committee, Frank Dibb.

One of the matters discussed at the convention had to do with the "helpless and unfair position" in which hospitals are placed as a result of the arbitrary reduction of their accounts for treatment of patients under the Workmen's Compensation Act. A number of conferences on this matter had been held and the conclusion had been finally reached that the only means of redress available for hospitals was an amendment to the Act. In view of pending litigation, however, the government, which had been very sympathetic in the matter, preferred not to have the Act amended at this time. Meantime, the condition had become quite "intolerable," the hospitals being made the "innocent victims of disagreement between the Workmen's Compensation Board and the medical men" as to the extent of hospitalization necessary.

It was also reported that the B. C. Hospitals Association was endeavoring to have legislation in regard to compulsory automobile insurance passed whereby in cases of automobile accidents, insurance companies would make settlement direct with hospitals for hospital treatment which would be deducted from the settlement with the insured. The co-operation of the insurance companies in this connection had been assured.

In regard to reading of x-ray plates, it was reported that larger hospitals in the province had expressed willingness to assist the smaller ones.

In the matter of patients who did not have the means to pay for them insisting upon being given private rooms in hospitals, the association had favored a policy of such patients either paying in advance or going into public wards.

There had been difference of opinion at the convention as to whether doctors should be provided by hospitals with rubber gloves and instruments when performing opations. The concensus of opinion of the local board seemed to be that the doctors could well afford to pay for their own gloves. The hospital was "on the short end" anyway as far as operations were concerned.

Treatment of contagious diseases by small hospitals was another question which was taken up by the convention. It was usual for the municipality to pay 50% of the cost of such cases and the entire cost if the patients were unable to pay.

Saving of Money

"Ways by which hospitals might save money" was another problem which had been dealt with by the convention and a number of suggestions were offered with a view to eliminating waste and effecting greater efficiency. The importance of co-operation on the part of nursing staff and doctors in this regard was stressed.

In regard to the making of extra charge for babies in the maternity departments of hospitals, it was reported that some hospitals made extra charge while others included

REPAIR JOB PROCEEDING

Work at Hospital is Now Expected to Cost $2000 Which is in Excess of Original Estimate

Renovation work which is being carried out at the Prince Rupert General Hospital, for which $1500 was originally provided, will run considerably in excess of that figure and, by the time it is completed, will probably exceed the $2000 mark, it was disclosed at last evening's meeting of the hospital board by Ald. S. D. Macdonald, chairman of the house committee. However, the concensus of opinion of the board was that good value was being given for the money expended and no work was being carried on that was not absolutely necessary.

Ald. Macdonald informed the board that, up to the end of last month, cost of the work had reached a total of $1410, including $261 for carpenters' wages. It was now apparent that the cost of the work would run well over the $1500 originally appropriated. The chairman of the house committee explained that it had been found necessary to carry out considerable work which had not been at first anticipated. The committee had done its best to hold the cost down and considered that all the expense incurred had been justifiable.

Good Job Done

Frank Dibb, chairman of the finance committee, agreed that it had been necessary to carry out much work which it had not been anticipated. A splendid job, however, was being done.

W. M. Brown, chairman of the board, stated that scores of little things which had not been anticipated had been done. Good value was being given for the money expended and nothing had been done that was not necessary.

Robert Gordon felt that the large expenditure now incurred was due to a great extent to the fact that in past years regular and systematic maintenance of the building had not been attended to.

Ald. Macdonald reported that Bell & Keays had agreed to do the balance of painting necessary for a flat figure of $50. A new hot water line had been installed to the operating room and was proving very satisfactory. Heating of the private ward section had been improved by removal of an air block.

The board adopted a recommendation from the finance committee that a tender from Mitchell & Currie for the making of improvements in the secretary's office be accepted. There were four tenders for this work.

At the suggestion of Ald. Macdonald it was decided to leave over until next year a proposal that a brass coil be installed in the main furnace at a cost of $50 with a view to more efficient heating of water.

A SATURDAY SERMON

Shall We Pray?

(By Rev. F. W. Dafoe, D.D., First Baptist Church)

As we are nearing the New Year and the time set apart by the Federal Council of Churches for a week of prayer, may I, on behalf of the ministers and churches of the city, send out a soul-searching "call" to leaders and members of every church to take this matter seriously to heart. We address you on urgent business. The church and nation is facing a grave and serious situation. There is on every hand physical and mental suffering. The condition has long continued and no one can see or point to a way of escape. Our best and most able men are helpless before the devastating effects of commercial distrust and moral confusion. While we long for the return of prosperity, we pray, rather, for the correction of those causes of distress without which prosperity may prove to be other than a blessing.

In many areas within the church there are urgent desires for a religious awakening. On every hand thoughtful Christians feel the root of our trouble is moral and spiritual. All laws are moral laws and, while we cannot trace their working, of one thing we are sure—that out of the past has come the present. We reap what we sow.

We have worshipped at the shrines of false gods—the false god of mammon, money, things; the false god of nationalism, individualism, social injustice; the false god of pleasure, amusement, disregard for things worthwhile; the false god of magic, reaping where we have not sowed, profiting where we have not toiled.

We have been careless in our thinking. So today the church dares not stand aside whispering peace either to herself or to the nation when there is no peace.

Only a national turning to God in repentance and moral restitution, seeking the forgiveness of God, will restore the spiritual health of our people. We have looked for signs of repentance and the fruit thereof, we have found nothing but leaves. On every hand there is a demand for prosperity, but no evident desire to return to the ways of faith and prayer. These are times for moral discipline. God waits on man's response. No social or political revival can come out of spiritual destitution and no national awakening can arise out of religious indifference. The only sure and adequate way is the way of Christ.

We, therefore, call upon all our people to give themselves by act of will, personally and corporately, in penitence and prayer to Almighty God. And in order to secure the spirit of fellowship in united intercession, the first week of the New Year has been set apart for this purpose. A time when pastor and people will search their hearts and conduct and, by personal dedication and public services appointed to meet the need of the hour, discover for themselves and nation the way of peace and power.

SHALL WE PRAY?

Canadian National Steamships announce that, for the convenience of holiday travellers, the steamer Prince Rupert, leaving here for the south on Thursday, December 22, will sail at 8:30 p.m. instead of 10 p.m. and will arrive in Vancouver at 9:45 on the morning of Saturday, December 24, instead of at 1:30 in the afternoon, the regular arrival time.
