The fallacy of tying up to Hard Coal

ALMOST the entire West burns soft coal in furnaces. The "anthracite" fallacy was exploded by necessity.

McClary's long ago built the ideal furnace for the West, and to-day it is the ideal furnace for the East. With the famous Air Blast Ring it burns soft coal or hard coal equally well.

Don't equip your home with a furnace that will burn hard coal only. McClary's All-Cast Sunshine will make you independent of fuel shortages.

NAVAL ARCHITECT TO ESTABLISH THIS PORT

O. Tellefsen Will Encourage Building of Fishing Boats Here, He Says

O. Tellefsen, a naval architect with experience at Christiana, Norway, Germany, France, and England, has decided to establish himself in business in this port. He has been up and down the coast to look over the ground and has decided that Prince Rupert is the most likely looking place there is just now.

Mr. Tellefsen says there are a number of fishermen and others who are proposing to go south to build their boats but whom he expects to persuade to remain and build them here.

David Johnston, Toronto mining engineer, who has been spending the past ten months in the Stewart and Kitsumkalum mining districts, left by last night's train on his return East.
