Queen's wardrobe unscrambled Platter News & Views by catalogued code for press

By ALAN HARVEY Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Her Majesty will wear 64 with 112 and matching 268. To fashion faddists it may seem sacrilegious, but that's the code that could come crackling over the wires during the Royal Tour. Unscrambled, it might read like this:

The Queen will wear peacockblue hat, matching suede shoes and short-sleeved lace dress with taffeta cummerbund.

Royal tour planners—strictly male—are thinking of adopting this numerical shorthand to let the press corps know what the Queen will wear on any given day of the six-week tour.

WARDROBE CATALOGUE Under present plans, Buckingham Palace would prepare a catalogue listing all the clothes in the Queen's wardrobe for the Canadian visit. Each item would be designated by a number—dresses from one to 50, say, hats from 51 to 71 and so on. *Correspondents covering the tour would get copies of the catalogue.

Then, each day, one of the Queen's aides on the royal yacht Britannia need only flash a cryptic signal containing three numbers. The reporters would "decode" this from the catalogue and presto typewriters would start clicking a detailed description of what the Queen was

The catalogue would have a section containing ink sketches of the royal gowns, making it a useful souvenir fo a tour that has been four years in the plan-

The press corps accompanying the royal party on the 12,000mile tour will be limited to 50— 15 from Britain, 10 from the United States and 25 Canadians. Already 65 applications have been received, foreshadowing polite regrets for some.

Hit Prediction of the Week: "Three Stars"-Delta 3071. A syrupy ballad outlining the saga of how three deceased rock 'n' rollers are now "Three Stars in the Heavens" appears headed for the top of the hit parade. The record, another in a long list of posthumus dedications, deals with the popular trio Ritchie Valens, The Big Bopper and Buddy Holly who died recently in a plane crash. The musical world and theatreland have a somewhat tinsely, over-sentimental way of paying tribute to those who have gone before. Of course, they may have a reason, such as giving the proceeds of the sale of the record to the survivors or to a memorial fund, which could be a feather in their cap.

A collection of the "Chirping Crickets" hit tunes and others are now available on Brunswick long play No. 54038. Buddy Holly organized this singing and instrumental group in 1955. The group consists of Joe Maudlin, Bass, Jerry Allison, Drums, Buddy Holly, and Niki Sullivan, Guitars. Their million-seller, "That'll Be The Day," and "I'm Lookin' For Someone To Love" are just a couple of the popular hits on

POPULAR

Jimmie Rodgers on his latest long play "TV Favorites Volume One," sings a cross-section of some of the selections he has performed on his Television show. This new record shows quite a different side of Jimmie. It also demonstrates that this young singer from the State of Washington is equally at home with the croopers' ballad "You And The Night And The Music" as he is with folk song, "Greensleeves." The record number is Roulette 25071.

The newest craze for exotic sounds since the Inca princess. Yma Sumac, made her debut on records some years ago, has turned up in the form of Martin Denny and his group from Hawaii. The quartet is composed of drums, vibes, bass and piano and the sound is enriched with oriental instruments and unusual bird calls produced by one of the musicians. The leader of the group, Martin Denny, collects rare and unusual instruments as a hobby. Their first album "Exotica" is possibly the most popular as the Les Baxter composition "Quiet Village" is included in the program. Mr. Denny and his group are supplying the demand for their records and now have six LP's on the market. The albums are, "Exotica Vol. 1 and 2," "Forbidden Island," "Primitiva," "Hypnotique," and "Afro-Desia." They are released on the Liberty label. CHILDREN'S

All the major recording companies are producing records for children at less than half the regular price and are still maintaining a high standard in sound and quality. For mothers who have children that will sit and listen to records the new prices will mean double the quantity for their money. A few of the titles and numbers are: "Children's Story Album," Harmony HL 7139, "Cinderella, Pinocchio and other Stories," Bluebird LBY 1000, "Tales From The Great Book," Bluebird LBY 1014, "Popeye's Favorite Sea Shanties," Bluebird LBY 1018. "An Hour Of Favorite Stories For Children," Camden CAL 364, "Mother Goose Parade," Lion 70075, "The Bear That Wasn't," "Drippy The Runaway Raindrop" and "Fantissimo The Musical Horse," Lion L 70076, "Tom And Jerry Storytime," Lion L 70087, "Children's Fun Festival," Promenade 2117, "Stories For Rainy Days," Vocalion VL 3624, "A Child's First Record," Vocalion VL 3625. MUSICAL SHOWS

The new show "Redhead" a romantic murder mystery musical, starring Gwen Verdon and Richard Kiley and now playing on Broadway has some very pleasant music but I don't feel it will ever be a great hit on wax until it has been immortalized on film. The reviews of the Broadway production, laud Gwen Verdon's vivacity, vocalizing and dancing and even go so far as to say, "without her it would have flopped." The setting is in London, England at the turn of the century and Miss Verdon plays the part of Essie Whimple, a wistful girl who fashions wax figures for her two aunts who own a museum. As the story enfolds "Essie" manages to trap a man for herself (Richard Kiley) as well as handing over the famous London strangler to the "Bobbies." The music and lyrics at times reminded me of "Gigi" especially the number "Behave Yourself." The record: "Redhead." RCA Victor LOC 1048.
