VEGETABLE SITUATION IS SERIOUS

Not a Question How Much They Will Cost But Where They Will be Obtained

SUGAR DROPPING

The root vegetable situation is becoming serious. It is no longer a question of price but supply. California's door is closed owing to the foot and mouth disease scourge that has swept that country and southern buyers have cleaned up all available supplies in Northern B.C. It is practically impossible to buy carrots in Vancouver. Prices on all vegetable lines are, of course, advancing considerably.

The potato market is showing decided strength and, as the season advances, the lack of good stock becomes more apparent. At the present time No. 1 potatoes are retailing in southeastern Alaska which includes Ketchikan, Wrangell and Juneau at $4.50 per sack. Local prices are decidedly low and are bound to advance shortly.

New Zealand butter is over for the year. No further supplies are expected or required.

There has been a slight advance in the flour market but it is not expected that prices will go any higher for some time.

The sugar market is still unsettled. There have been two declines of 10c each during the past fortnight and the market is expected to go even lower. Careful dealers are buying light at present.
