FASHIONS & FOIBLES

by Shirley Sharon

The round, shallow yoke which lends its outline to so many fashions for grown-ups is charming in a soft, full frock for the small girl.

AT A recent and very royal children's party held in an old-world garden in the heart of London a small girl who presented a bouquet to her royal hostess wore a little French frock of pale-blue Georgette printed with parrot tulips in pink and white and red and yellow. The dress itself hung softly from a round shallow yoke and the short sleeves were slashed to the shoulders. These little straight-hanging frocks are charming in all the soft Summer materials and colors—geranium cotton voile, canary-colored fine cotton crêpe, powder-blue batiste, silk crêpe, crêpe de Chine, flowered silks, etc.

EDMONTON PREFERS SMALL HOUSES AND OTHERS ARE VACANT

EDMONTON, July 31. — Large houses appear to be going out of fashion in Edmonton, and in some cases new bungalows are being built alongside vacant larger houses.

An inspection of the list of permits issued by the building inspector reveals the fact that practically all new residences erected this year are of the bungalow type, containing from four to seven rooms and costing from $2,500 to $3,500.

It is noticeable also, in the city, that while many eight and twelve-roomed houses are available for rent, there is scarcely a bungalow vacant in any district.

PREACH IN ENGLISH

SCRANTON, Pa., July 31.—After seventy-five years of Welsh preaching, members of the First Welsh Baptist Church here have requested their pastor, Rev. T. T.
