BABY'S COLDS

Children's delicate digestions are easily disturbed by too much "dosing." Still, the little ones' cold troubles cannot be neglected.

At the very first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks VapoRub over the throat and chest. There is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. Colds go over night, croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

Man who Poses as Husband of Another Gets into Serious Difficulties

Roxbury Medcroft dashed into a New York hotel, where he met his old college friend, Terry Brock. Medcroft fell on his neck exclaiming that the Gods had sent him in an hour of need. He explained that he was concerned in exposing a large graft in Washington. He wanted Brock to go to Los Angeles and pose as himself, Medcroft. If he could get back to Washington while the grafters believed him to be in Los Angeles he knew that he could get rid of them finally and effectively.

His proposition was that Brock leave immediately. Medcroft's wife had consented to help the plot along and would go with him as his wife. Brock could carry on the blug long enough to give Medcroft a chance to put his deal through.

Complications began on the train when it was discovered that Roxbury had not been able to secure extra accommodations for Brock; that he had neglected to tell Brock that he must likewise pose as the father of a child.

Altogether Brock had a very miserable trip, which was not helped by the fact that he discovered that Edith's sister was the most fascinating girl he had ever seen in spite of the fact that she rocked with mirth most of the day over the ludicrous position in which he found himself. He had to quiet the suspicions of the passengers, teach the baby and dog to like him and maintain an attitude of dignity. But the only thing that he wanted was to make an impression upon Connie.

Posed as Deaf

He so blandly ignored telegrams and letters addressed to Medcroft and so often sat like a lump when he was addressed as Medcroft that he was forced in confusion to attribute his defect to bad hearing.

The arrival at Los Angeles was a matter of great anxiey Soon they met some of Edith's cousins, the Rodney's and a rich young man, Freddie Ulstervelt. Freddie was impressed with the resemblance between Medcroft and a chap in New York by the name of Brock, whom he knew casually, but his suspicions were not aroused because Connie, whom he knew very well, accepted Brock as her brother-in-law. The Rodneys were meeting Brock for the first time.

However, this was the beginning of the real difficulties of the adventure, for Freddie was in love with Connie, although he was supposedly engaged to Katherine Rodney. Brock was able to play the part of husband fairly convincingly until he saw Freddie step in and attempt to win Connie.

Brock Enters Romantic Race

He decided to give Freddie a run for his money. This not only scandalized the Rodneys, but it fanned the flame of Freddies' ardor to such an extent that he began to neglect Katherine shamefully. Katherine was now eager to discredit Connie, so she began to seek for evidence that Connie was carrying on an affair with her sister's husband.

Carney was interested in securing a few of the Ulstervelt millions for one of his pet ventures, and for this reason they were willing to lend the social prestige of their presence at the Rodney house. Mrs. Rodney was in a white heat of perturbation lest things should not go off as they had hoped.

The Carneys were quite simple folk who liked real people and who had a sense of humor. The first shadow that fell upon Edith's good name came when Mrs. Carney overheard Brock insisting to Edith that he was tired of being Connie's brother-in-law. Edith, in mock tragedy, admonished him for his neglect and begged him to consider the child. Brock replied that the child had nothing to do with the case, since he wasn't even related to her.

Scandal Rumor Spreads

It was Katherine who planted the suspicion of Brock's affair with Connie in her mother's mind. Her mother having no sense went completely off her head at the thought that they were likely to be socially ruined if gossips got busy.

Everything broke at once Somebody bought a paper which contained an article telling how Medcroft had suddenly appeared in Washington and of the splendid coup he was putting over The authorities saw it, too, and decided to investigate the man who was calling himself Medcroft and using Medcroft's letter of credit.

Brock was arrested. Neither he nor Edith would make an explanation, having promised Medcroft that they would not speak until they heard from him. Connie attempted to get Brock out on bail, and put a worse light on the situation.

Then it was that Brock whispered something into Connie's ear. She smiled in agreement. A series of fast hair-breadth dashes resulted and just as they got aboard a boat for their honeymoon, some friends arrived shouting that Medcroft had returned and everything was fixed up.

The play is shown tonight at the Westholme.

A BAD COLD DEVELOPED INTO BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Levi Ogden, Amherst Shore, N.S., writes:—"My baby girl had a very bad cold which turned to bronchitis, and she could not sleep at night for the coughing. I gave her everything I could think of to relieve her, but nothing seemed to do her any good, and she was not getting any better. I was advised, by a friend, to try

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

I did so, and after giving her a few doses I saw good effects so I kept on with it. I gave her two bottles, and her cough soon left her, and now she is as well as can be. I cannot praise 'Dr. Wood's' enough; it is certainly a wonderful medicine."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 35 years; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LOCAL GIRLS ARE DEFEATED

Blue Birds of Anyox Won Basketball Game from Locals Last Night by 12 to 7

The Maple Leafs of Prince Rupert were defeated by the Blue Birds of Anyox, 12 to 7 in the game at Anyox last night for the ladies' basketball championship of Northern British Columbia. The locals were plainly out of practice and that, they admit themselves, was responsible for their defeat. They were called upon at short notice to play the game after not having touched a ball since the season here closed some weeks ago. The Anyox ladies, all of whom are married, were fresh from the league season at Anyox in which they won the championship.

The game was attended by a good crowd of local people who at least gave the Prince Rupert ladies all they could in the way of moral support. Among those who saw the game were Joe Scott, Ed. Gibbons, Harold McEwen, M. P. McCaffery, G. W. Nickerson and J. H. Pillsbury. Also in attendance were members of the C.G.M.M. official party who are on a tour of the north

After the game a dance was held until the steamer pulled out for home at midnight. At Stewart yesterday the girls were taken for a sleigh ride to Hyder.

Accompanying the local girls on the trip were Miss S. A. Mills and Ralph Smith, their coach.

Sport Chat

With the sawmill in operation and elevator construction under way, there should be more talent available for football and baseball here this season than there has been for some years past. Four teams are already entered for the Senior Football League—Sons of Canada, Sons of England, Callies and Great War Veterans—and it is expected that it will not be so difficult to mar these teams as it has been on some occasions in the past. It is hardly expected, however, that there will be more than the four teams. At that, it would be better to have four well matched aggregations to play tight games than it would be to have more with some weaklings among them.

Following the annual meeting this week, soccer organization for the year will now be actively under way with the opening of the season expected towards the end of next month. Registration forms will soon be issued and the players formally signed on. The Baseball Association will be calling its annual meeting in the near future. There should also be a good supply of baseball players here this year. Local sporting organizations will again press for the institution of daylight saving so that an extra hour for evening's play will be given. Unless the system is accepted generally, however, it is unlikely the city council will enact in favor of it. At that, if the eight-hour day is observed, there will not be any great difficulty for players turning out for games by six-o'clock in the evenings.

Two Dominion hockey championships came west on Wednesday night when the Port Arthur team won the Allan Cup in competition with Toronto Varsity and Regina beat Toronto for the Junior memorial trophy. The burning speculation today in the minds of Western fans is: Will the Victoria Cougars also bring the Stanley Cup West? With two easy victories tucked away, it would seem that the Cougars ought to be able to get the third and most necessary one. However, the Canadiens should be in better form and many are figuring on them for a win in tonight's game. Others maintain that, since the Cougars had it so easy in the first game, "there will be something queer in Denmark" if they do not come through again tonight. One cannot help but observe that those who are most prone to suggest manipulation in connection with sport are just as speculative about the results of games as anybody else.
