COLONEL PECK AMUSES HOUSE

Tries to Find Something Good in Government and Succeeds Amid Roars of Laughter

LEGISLATIVE GLIMPSES

VICTORIA, Nov. 24. — Col. Cy. Peck, who got his V.C. at Cambrai, kept the House in roars of laughter when he scouted round trying to find a good word for the government. Finally he hit on one thing on which he could congratulate them, and that was their urbanity and unanimity.

Reminded him of a story, he said, and told how a tough old curmudgeon had passed on and the village gossips were trying to find something good to say of him. Finally one old crony hit on it.

"Boys," he said, "he was a good smoker."

That's how the government appealed to the gallant Cy, who expressed his unbounded admiration at the manner in which they could carry on with a placid and unruffled exterior in the face of the criticism of the people of the province.

He said they reminded him of the hardened sinner who had lost all hope of redemption but puts on a cheerful grin and decides to see it through.

Premier's Humor

Hon. John Oliver occasionally gives the House glimpses of human nature, as seen through the eyes of a prime minister. The House was discussing a dyking act Tuesday, and one of the members was stating that the land would not pay the charges against it and give the farmers a chance.

"Well, I don't know," said the Premier. "My experience is that if it is a case of establishing a claim against the government for compensation, the land is extremely valuable, but if it is a case of collecting taxes for work done by the government, then the land is of no value at all."

From the Public Accounts Committee, Hon. T. D. Pattullo on the stand.

Mr. Pooley: "Are you the minister of lands?"

Mr. Pattullo: "I am—for the time being, anyway."

Golf Handicap

Later, Mr. Pooley indulged in another little joke.

"You're sworn, Mr. Pattullo," he cautioned. Hon. "T.D." agreed.

"Well, now," said Mr. Pooley, confidentially, after warning the stenographer not to get it on the notes. "What is your golf handicap?"

As there may be a Liberal-Conservative match some day, the minister took refuge in ministerial silence. However, he admitted that he had been on the links at day-light that morning.

By the way "Harry" Pooley let the House into some of the deep, dark secrets of his youth.

Ranchers' legislation was before the House, and Hon. E. D. Barrow suggested that Mr. Pooley was not acquainted with the act or the necessity of the legislation which has been asked for by upcountry ranchers.

Pooley the Cow Boy

"I might inform the minister that I was a cowboy for many months each year and for many years," said Mr. Pooley, and it was the first that the majority of the members of the House knew that he could ride other than a political horse.

But it is so. In his younger days Mr. Pooley was a quirt-carrying, chap-wearing buckaroo of the ranges around Kamloops and Cherry Creek, and only a few weeks ago when he was asked to mount a horse and the grinning cow-punchers thought they had a greenhorn to handle, the opposition leader cocked a wise-eye at the saddle, lifted the conch and took out the burr that had been placed there to make sure he got a rough ride.

"You youngsters play the same tricks we old cowpunchers did," he remarked mildly as he climbed around the bronk and left the circle of cowboys, with their lower jaws hanging loose from astonishment.
