CANNOT INHERIT TILL 50 YEARS OLD

Grim Humor Displayed in Will Recently Made by New York Man

NEW YORK, July 25.—In a will recently filed at White Plains, a father provided that his children the eldest of whom is 32 and the youngest 17, must wait until they reach the age of 50 before they inherit their shares in his estate. "They will then," ran the will, "have developed a greater degree of respect for their father than they have shown during his lifetime."

SPOOKY MADONNA IN RAGUSA CHURCH

Worshippers Astonished When Eyes Open and Shut, Apparently by Machinery

PRAGUE, July 25.—From the beautiful little town of Ragusu, on the Dalmatain coast, comes a curious story of a wooden Madonna in a thirteenth-century church, whose glass eyes open and shut. It appears that on a sunny June afternoon some girls were making their usual devotions in the church when, to their amazement, they saw the eyes of "the Madonna of the Holy Heart," as she is called, slowly open and shut. Astonished, they ran out into the market place to tell their strange story, which spread like wildfire, bringing thousands from far and near to observe the novel sight. And the strange thing about it all is that even sceptics admit to having seen it happen. It is suspected that the statue, which has been in the church for fifty years, has certain machinery in its head which has just begun to work. An inquiry is being made by the local town council.

Thomas Meighan

In

"Tongues of Flame"

The "Good Luck" star as the lovable fighting hero of Peter Clark Macfarlane's powerful novel burns up the screen with action. The story of how an "easy mark," his name unjustly blackened, becomes hard-boiled and makes it clean. The drama of an innocent man sent to jail, and of how he won back his good name and a girl. Everybody's favorite as "Hell Fire" Harrington, a returned soldier who finds more thrills and excitement on his own Main Street than he did on all the battle grounds of France. A photo-play of pleasing romance. Spectacular fire scenes and mob episodes. Strong supporting cast.

Thomas Meighan, Bessie Love, Burton Churchill, John Miltern Cyril Ring, Eileen Percy and many others.
