CONVERT STABLES INTO DWELLINGS

Advent of Auto Makes Old Buildings Useless For Former Purpose

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Many of London's aristocracy are busy converting disused stables and attics in Mayfair into stylish maisonettes for their own use and the Duke and Duchess of York indirectly are responsible.

Since these members of the King's family settled in Mayfair there has been a stampede of those who wish to live near enough to bask in the Royal smiles. There is a great shortage of houses in this section, and those available mostly are enormous, old fashioned mansions, costly to lease and expensive to maintain. Hence the conversion of stables.

Mayfair has, of course, long been the home of the élite. It is to London what Park Avenue and Fifth Avenue are to New York.

In the old days, there were many mews filled with small buildings in which the blooded horses and the fine carriages of the aristocracy were housed. Since the automobile has come into such common use, however, the glossy steeds and the gorgeously uniformed lackeys have largely joined the other picturesque relics of the hey day of blue blood. Now there are few mews in Mayfair these days which do not house distinguished families.
