Trailing 5-2 and shackled by Lew Burdette's pitching mastery Tuesday, the Dodgers chased the Milwaukee righthander by tying the score in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Each team loaded the bases in the 11th but it remained for the 12th inning to touch off a wild explosion by the slim crowd of 36,528 at Los Angeles Coliseum. This was the situation just before the four-hour, six-minute struggle ended. Stan Williams, sixth Dodger pitcher, and Bob Rush, fifth Milwaukee hurler, were pitching as though they expected to stay all night. The lights were on as the score stood at 5-5.
