When your eyes ache, sting or feel tired, it is Nature's warning — they are strained.

If you are wise, you will heed that warning and will have a complete examination of your eyes made and thus probably prevent serious eyesight trouble later on.

Can you afford to waste the nerve energy necessary to carry along defective eyes?

ULTRA-MODERN YOUNG WOMEN AND JAP MEN

PLAYING AT ART IN CITY OF TOKYO AFTER STYLE OF OCCIDENTAL PEOPLE

TOKYO, Oct. 15.— Long-haired men and short-haired women are one of the latest phases of Japan's gropings toward modernism.

The police, always on the hunt for those with "dangerous thoughts," are watching these young imitation Greenwich Villagers with more or less suspicion, although the only thing they "have found on them" up to the present is that they seem to be jobless and to have a distinct leaning toward art.

COSTUMES OF ALL HUES

Young men, with lengthy black hair obscuring the place where their collars should be, garbed in extremely nondescript costumes, promendate up and down the Ginza—Tokyo's Broadway — and loaf around the tiny hole-in-the-wall cafes. Most of them go bareheaded. They usually wear a disreputable looking blouse and a pair of extreme Oxford bags which flap gaily in the evening breeze as they patter blithely along the street by the side of their bobbed-haired "little friend."

ROLL 'EM AND BOB 'EM

These young women of Tokyo are entirely "new" so far as the other natives are concerned. They wear their raven locks in every conceivable mode, ranging from the "shingle" to the "boyish bob." Sometimes they wear the garish kimona of the geisha, and then again they appear in knee-length skirts, rolled stockings and saucy little hats perched over one ear. How they live is a mystery, although it is said that many of them are stenographers or waitresses who play at art when they are not working.

Not far from the Ginza there is a little so-called "artist's colony," where these ultra-modern Japanese boys and girls lounge around easels, smoke numerous cigarettes, absorb great quantities of tea and otherwise "express their souls."

WATER NOTICE

Diversion and Use

TAKE NOTICE that H. D. Kyle, whose address is Wrangell, Alaska, and Telegraph Creek, B. C., will apply for a license to take and use 2,000 miner's inches flow of water out of Bucks Gulch, which flows easterly into Dease Creek. The water will be diverted from the stream at a point about two miles up the stream from its mouth into Dease Creek and will be used for hydraulic mining purposes upon bench placer claims known and described as leases No. 120 and 121. This notice was posted on the ground on the 23rd day of July 1926.

A copy of this notice and an application pursuant thereto and to the "Water Act, 1914," will be filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Telegraph Creek.

Objections to the application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B. C., within thirty days after the first appearance of this notice in the local newspaper.

The date of the first publication of this notice is September 14th, 1926.

FRANCO-GERMAN CONSERVATIONS

France will be glad of the money.

Just because of her financial needs France would welcome the liquidation of a large mass of the railway bonds, say, two milliard gold marks worth, now lying in the desk of the Reparation Commissioner at Berlin. This would involve no sacrifice on Germany's part because she is already paying interest on these bonds. It is entirely a matter of marketing them in New York and London and "transferring" the proceeds to France so as to enable her to restore her finances.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY

Here precisely is the difficulty—that of transfer. And this problem cannot be solved without American and British co-operation. Parker Gilbert, the American Commissioner for Reparations in Berlin, has already been sounded, and is adamantine. He finds it already difficult enough to fulfil his task of transfer, and declares that it is impossible to add more. Parker Gilbert is still young, has considerable ability, and is quite justifiably ambitious. His inflexibility is therefore only part of his seriousness. To him the transfer of an additional two milliard gold marks by the marketing of railway debentures or otherwise is simply out of the question.

Add to this obstacle the fact that by virtue of the debt arrangements nearly every centime that France is likely to receive from Germany through Mr. Parker Gilbert is earmarked in advance for New York and London, or rather to New York only, for London is a mere transmitting agent, and the full strangeness of the position is revealed. France is in need; Germany is ready and willing to help her; politicians at Washington stand in the way.

POLITICAL ENTENTE

It is to this difficulty thus bluntly outlined that M. Briand and Herr Stresemann have worked out a program of solution. It is simply that of continuing and enlarging the economic union already begun and complementing it with a political entente. A potash combine already exists, a steel trust may be signed any hour, a coal crartel and a chemical combine are in the making, an iron-ore arrangement is inevitable. When the work is completed Franco-German credit, will be so high, their joint armor so formidable, that the existing barriers are likely to prove very frail.

UNITED EUROPE

When that hour comes—and it may not be far distant—Paris and Berlin will be in a position to use plain speech to London and New York. At least they will be able to advance strong and persuasive argument in favor of the annulment, partial or in whole, of inter-Allied debts. Little difficulty may be anticipated with London. England should be as anxious as any other debtor to see annulment of debts by America. The state of her industries is such that her only chance of recovery is in that restoration of Europe which the Franco-German plan envisages, all the more so as the door is always open to her entry into the combination. Her political interest, too, is for peace in Europe. But she will have to make her choice inevitably, one day or another, whether to enter into the consolidation of Western Europe—the precursor of a future United States of Europe—or to hold aloof, nourishing her Imperial dream.

U.S. AN OBSTACLE

Inevitably, America is regarded as the main obstacle. But what will America reply when the final appeal is addressed to her? For it will be more or less in these terms: "You alone stand in the way of world peace; you alone hinder the conciliation and recovery of Europe on this side of the Atlantic. All is prepared, and is only awaiting your answer. That answer will show exactly where you stand. It will be the acid test whether you are prepared to contribute to the welfare of mankind, or whether you deliberately and of set purpose mean to perpetuate and batten upon the divisions and unhappinesses of the older Continent."

BRITISH GOODWILL

Such, in summary, is the ideology and to some degree even the language that one has heard in Franco-German quartres this week-end. Merely by way of exactitude it should be added that in these same quarters there are certain sceptics who doubt British goodwill. Free Trade, they say, is so dead in England that an economic union of Western Europe has no longer any attraction, but rather raises fears of competition. The Franco-German economic bogey will be raised even by newspapers and parties that used to be nominally anti-Protectionist. And, above all, there is the Imperialist sentiment. The entry of British industries in this European consolidation will come into conflict with the Imperial preferences already existing or in contemplation. Both on narrow economic and on broad political grounds, resistance, it is feared, may be anticipated from British Imperialism so strongly represented by the present Conservative Government.

Nevertheless, unless the unforeseen happens, the Briand-Stresemann program, as I have explained it, will be proceeded with until it is an accomplished fact.

OF COURSE.

The dear old lady loves to see the kiddies enjoying themselves, and she wore a radiant expression as she mingled with the children at the annual outing.

"Are you the little girl who was born in Africa?" she asked 10-year old Molly.

"Yes, mum."

"And which part?"

Molly gave her a pitying look. "Why, all of me, of course," she answered.—Tit-Bits.

SKIDEGATE

A very enjoyable hard times dance was held last week end at the Dufferin Pattullo school, all the Prince Rupert trollers being present. Some of the costumes would have been an eye opener for Charlie Chaplin. Miss Edna Stevens and Mrs. Francis Size looked after the refreshments and saw that everybody had a good time.

A good many of the seiners have quit and gone home. Taken on the whole, the seining season has been a failure. One of the main reasons was the wet summer. All the rivers and creeks were high and the salmon went up as fast as they came in.

Skidegate Inlet had four steamers in it one day last week — the Danish freighter Dryjane which loaded a million and a half feet of high grade spruce at the Sitka Spruce mill, Queen Charlotte City, the Prince Charles, Chilkoot and Salvor.

The Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co.'s packer Greir Starrett with Capt. Dahl and Chief Engineer Bill Cummings in charge came into Skidegate Inlet to relieve the Chief Legaic. Both these boats are engaged in buying cohos. The trolling has been improving every day.

MIXING THEM

She was a very accomplished pianist and entertained the guests while they were waiting for dinner. After a particularly brilliant piece she rose from the music-stool amidst a burst of applause. Her husband turned to a male guest who was seated near him.

"And now, would you like a sonata before dinner, Mr. Smith?"

Smith's eyes brightened. "Well, I had something else on my way here," he said eagerly. "But I certainly don't mind mixing them."—Liverpool Post.

"What Happened to Jones"

An adaptation for the screen of George Broadhurst's famous stage success. Real, regular, riotous farce. What did happen to Jones? Oh, nothing much. A police raid drove him into a ladies' Turkish bath, then into women's clothes, then into a church where his best girl was being married to his worst friend. Outside of that it was a quiet day for him. What just did happen to Jones? That's what an army of people, a police force, a minister, a bride and her wedding guests and hosts of others wanted to know. Come and find out for yourself and spend one of the most enjoyable evenings of the year. Strong cast.
