THE INDIAN CANOE

Written specially for the "News" by Rev. J. B. McCullagh, Aiyemh, Naas Valley, British Columbia

Passing quietly out of use and consequently out of existence, the Indian Canoe will soon be numbered among the things of this world, which have been and never again shall be.

In the days of the old stone axe, the making of the canoe was a work of great skill and patience; and yet not so difficult as would appear to us at first sight.

Nothing can exceed the beauty of the canoe for gracefulness of curve and line, buoyancy and poise; and when well ballasted and under full sail before a spanking breeze, the motion and behavior of the craft were all that the Haida sailor could desire.

THE INDIAN'S FAREWELL TO HIS CANOE.

Fare thee well, my shapely shallop, O'er the brine no more we'll gallop To the swelling, and the falling, and the dancing of the tide!

I remember well the morning, Spring's bright glances all adorning, With the favour of good hunting, the fair promise of the year.

O'er thy lovely prow with pleasure Roved my eyes to con the measure Of thy graceful lines and motion, as thou floated by the shore;

Wist I well thou wert not knitted, Plank to ribs with nails, and fitted From a pile of lifeless lumber, as the Whiteman builds his boat;

Long we've cruised the coast together, Both in fair and stormy weather, And have fronted death united half a dozen times or more;

Now the times have changed around us, And new-ordered ways have found us, When to the swift the race is, and the spoils are for the strong.

Thus it is, beloved Mali, (2) That I sing thee, sigh the Vale! (3) And my soul's imbued with sorrow as the bushes close thee round.

(1) The Haidas are the Indians of Q. C. I.; the greatest canoe makers the world has ever known.

(2) Mali means my canoe in the Naas River dialect.

(3) Vale—continental usage followed.

PASTOR'S BLOW IN CHURCH

"Knockout" for a Ringleader of Roughts Who are Taught Good Lesson

Sydney, Feb. 28.—The Rev. J. Hosking, Congregational minister, who does a great deal of work in the slum quarters of Melbourne, has given a lesson to a gang of roughts who visited his church by way of a Sunday evening pastime and interrupted the service by whistling and making offensive remarks.

Mr. Hosking left his pulpit, took off his surplice, and walking up to the ringleader, an athletic lad of 19, dealt him a heavy blow on the jaw.

"This may seem a strange way to conduct a church," said Mr. Hosking afterwards, "but what can a man do? Must the neighborhood be deprived of these services because some twenty hooligans choose to try to break them up? I have to be a detective and a pugilist as well as a preacher."

WEDDING BELLS FOR HUSKY JOE RIVERS

Los Angeles, Feb. 28.—The wedding bells will ring for Joe Rivers, conquerer of Knockout Brown, and Miss Pauline Slirt, of Santa Monica, Saturday according to announcement of the young lady's parents today.

Manager Joe Levy, who will be the best man at the wedding, says the young lady is the one girl for his protege. It is the intention of Rivers to start east Tuesday on his honeymoon.

MCCREDIE WON'T LET WILLIAMS HAVE BERRY

Portland, Ore., Feb. 28.—While Manager Nick Williams, of the Portland Northwestern League team, was smiling in joyful anticipation over the prospect of signing Claude Berry, former San Francisco catcher, Walter McCredie, manager of the Beavers, closed negotiations with the veteran Seal, and Berry will wear a Portland Coast uniform this season.
