CIVIC CENTRE

Prince Rupert's fast growing Civic Centre adds one more feature to a very full program for members when, in conjunction with the tiny tots' class, a toddlers' group will be held every Wednesday afternoon commencing this week. With members of over eighty years of age now active in the Centre work, the association makes good the boast that it caters to every age.

The new group is designed for children of walking-age and over. The object is to give care, training and supervision to those too young for the three year to six year old Tiny Tots group, and to prepare them for the older group when they reach their third birthdays. Children who are already three but are a little shy about attending tiny tots group will be able to attend the toddlers group, until they are used to playing with others.

With over 100 in the tiny tots group now, the leaders have decided on a definite ruling regarding admittance to the tiny tots and only those who have passed their third birthdays will be registered.

The toddlers' group will be supervised by one of the tiny tots leaders, and mothers will be called upon for volunteer assistance. The usual Civic Centre requirement for junior or family membership will prevail with a reduced rate now in effect, as the season is three months gone.

Blackwood on Bridge

By Easley Blackwood

A four no trump bid is not forcing—and does not ask for aces—unless at least one member of the partnership has made a suit bid somewhere along the line.

How do you ask for aces when your partner opens with one no trump and you suspect a slam? Well, you must bid a suit first. Do not jump directly to four no trump. Put in a jump take-out of three in your suit. Partner will then raise your suit to four if he has good support for it.

None vulnerable.
South dealer.

South (Mr. Masters)

C—A K 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	3 H	Pass
4 H	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 S	Pass	6 NT	All pass

If his holding in your suit is something like a doubleton king or doubleton ace he will probably bid three no trump. After you hear his response you can decide what to do. In any case, a four no trump bid by you now will be recognized by your partner as asking for aces.

If your partner opens with two no trump, as in today's hand, and you want to find out about aces, again you must bid a suit first. Mr. Dale, holding the North cards, was willing to play either hearts or no trump. The only question was how many. He bid three hearts, which Mr. Masters raised to four.

Now Mr. Dale bid four no trump. If his partner had bid five hearts, showing two aces, he would have passed, with every expectation of making that contract. Actually, however, Mr. Masters bid five spades, showing three aces, and with this information Mr. Dale was happy to contract for a slam.

He decided the slam should be played by his partner. There were two reasons for this. First, Mr. Masters plays a hand beautifully. Secondly, Mr. Dale had no tenaces which needed leading up to, whereas Mr. Masters might have.

On this excellent reasoning, Mr. Dale bid the slam in no trump instead of in hearts. You can see how the old master's strategy worked out.

Playing six hearts the lead of a spade through the king by East would have beaten the contract immediately. But with West on the lead against six no trump, victory was assured.

SOCIAL COSTS

SPORT SHOTS

LONDON—Oxford University's representative Golf Team is really on the spot. Its members didn't know the dice were loaded when their captain agreed to a challenge match. It started from a jesting remark in the clubhouse after the Oxford team had been beaten 17-1 by members of the exclusive Sunningdale golf team.

Brig. A. C. Critchley, native of Calgary who formerly held the French Amateur Golf Title, suggested with a smile that the soundly - trounced University team would have a hard time beating a squad of good women players. How about a challenge match, he asked the Oxford captain. The university captain, P. F. Gardiner-Hill, brushed aside the taunts but accepted the challenge without consulting his team-mates.

Then the women golfers accepted the idea enthusiastically and it was agreed the match would be played late in January, over the tricky women's course at Sunningdale. Details were left to be threshed out later. Meanwhile, the Sunningdale gals chosen to uphold the h[illegible] the club went into serio[illegible]ing.
