ANCIENT EPICURES
The great vine snail, native to Europe, was considered a food luxury by the ancient Romans.

CITY COUNCIL BACKING

neer who is expected next week to begin a survey of the exterior installations of lines, cables, terminals and connections.

On completion of this survey, the company will make a "solid bid" on the entire program for installation of a new automatic system. Top figure has been estimated at around $750,000. If the figure presented is acceptable to the council, a money bylaw will be placed before the people, who can either accept or reject it.

Then why hold a referendum?

"Cost of the new system may exceed the borrowing power of city, under present restrictions of the Municipal Act," explained Mr. Long, "but with an affirmative expression of opinion we are sure we will be allowed to place the bylaw."

Mr. Long said the city had been advised by the Department of Municipalities at Victoria that a "yes" answer to the referendum "would greatly strengthen the council's hand in applying for the money bylaw."

TEMPORARY BOARD

The city clerk also told The Daily News that he had in writing a promise from Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd. that they will supply a temporary manually-operated patchboard during the three-year interim period of installing a new system.

"The company guarantees to hold this board for the city until after the money bylaw has been placed. This board will greatly improve our service, give additional phones and will be installed by the company at no cost to us.

If the money bylaw is passed, the company has agreed to begin immediate rehabilitation of the outside plant. Engineers estimate the work could be completed within one year. Inside plant installations, however, would take about three years, depending upon availability of equipment.

City favors Automatic Electric (Canada) Ltd., because it is the only company of several which has offered the temporary equipment during the installation interim period.

"But the referendum does not hold us to negotiations with this company. If their final proposal is out of line, the city will be able to negotiate with any other company," explained Mr. Long. "But the council has to have the support of the people to open any negotiations."

Meanwhile, there is another angle. It is expressed by Ald.-Elect T. Norton Youngs, who believes the city should divorce itself from operating the telephone system and should sell it to private enterprise.

"I think we're wasting money trying to run a telephone system on a small scale. It compares to running an electrical power utility.

"It would bring more revenue in the long run and save a lot of headaches if the telephone system were run by a large private enterprise. At least, we should make an investigation.

"It is obvious that the telephone system needs a complete renewal, but I don't think the city should tackle the job. Not only would we be getting three per cent of gross revenue from a commercial company, but we would benefit by taxes from their buildings and property."

POWER POTENTIAL

The Grand Falls on the Hamilton River in Labrador have been estimated to have a hydro potential of 1,250,000 horsepower.
