TRADE WITH ATLIN

At present Prince Rupert does no business with Atlin, according to R. L. Monroe, Government agent, who lived in Atlin for a number of years. He says he finds Prince Rupert merchants rather indifferent in regard to the business.

Prince Rupert also does very little business, comparatively, with Stewart. Most of the supplies for that camp are shipped direct from the south.

This is a matter that might well be considered locally. Prince Rupert ought to supply the contiguous territory and there should be some means of getting the business.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Just as it is necessary for merchant to advertise in order to keep his goods before the public, so it is desirable that a city shall keep itself in the public eye all the time and make its influence felt abroad, if it is to take full advantage of its opportunities. To do that it is necessary that there be some centre of publicity such as a publicity and industrial bureau or committee to deal with all matters pertaining to relations with the outside. Publicity has to be properly organized or it gets nowhere.

There is no necessity to spend a lot of money on advertising and publicity, but there must be someone to answer letters and keep up a watching brief for the city so that no opportunity be lost and also to take aggressive action. We must capitalize all our opportunities or we cannot expect to succeed.

NEW STEAMER LAUNCHED

The launching of the Prince Henry yesterday was an important event. This is one of the three new steamers being constructed for operation on this coast, one of which will ply regularly to Prince Rupert. This vessel will bring thousands of tourists to the city and it will be for the citizens to take steps to capitalize them here just as they do in Alaska.

HOPEFUL FOR HIGHWAY

In his election address Mayor-Elect Orme stated that the Skeena highway scheme had reached a stage where it looked as if something tangible would be announced soon. A despatch from Victoria today confirms this and indicates that the scheme is at least being seriously considered in the south.

We are particularly pleased to know this. The highway is the one thing needed from a purely provincial point of view. Let the provincial authorities give us a highway, the federal authorities give us the Peace River outlet and the railway give us a hotel and we shall be on the high road to success.

Luck is the garnishing on the dish prepared by skill.

Canada to Be New Home For Swedish

Sixty-two Families Repatriated After Exile in Russia

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 18.—Canada may become the future home of 62 Swedish families, who were recently repatriated from the village of Gammalsvenskby, in southern Russia, after an exile of 150 years. A Swedish committee is scheduled to visit Canada this month to make preliminary arrangements for transfer. It will include the Rev. Christopher Hoas, pastor of Gammalsvenskby colony, who was greatly instrumental in bringing about the exodus of the Swedish villagers from Russia.

Several reasons were offered for the planned emigration from Sweden. One is that the Swedish climate does not agree with all of the Gammalsvenskby people. Another is that chances of acquiring large tracts of land are better in Canada.

Western Canada Air Mail Is to Start Next Month

EDMONTON, Jan. 18. — In connection with the air mail service throughout Western Canada which commences the first of February, it is expected that the first flights will be made during the daylight hours, but later on there may be night flying also in the carrying of the mails. It is explained that delay in the air service has been occasioned by heavy demands for lighting equipment, the demands having exceeded the supply. The routes of the air mail service are being marked by beacons under the direction of the Department of National Defence, and as the department has not been able to obtain the needed supply of lighting equipment there has been delay, as stated.

Uniform For Women M. P.'s Now Proposed

LONDON, Jan. 18—Since Dr. Marion Phillips has designed a uniform for women M. Ps.—though she has yet to induce them to adopt it—perhaps some male member may seek to revive the tradition of court dress in the house. The British House of Commons, however, was never rigid, or flamboyant, in the matter of dress as its oldtime Irish counterpart. The uniform of a member of the Irish parliament in 1774 was described as comprising a suit of deep maroon broadcloth, embroidered with heavy gold bullion, with the figure of a harp surrounded by a wreath of shamrock. The breeches were of deep yellow plush and the three-cornered hat of black beaver was liberally adorned with gold lace. On the whole, the uniform suggests that of a state coachman, and, taken in the bulk, it must have been rather overwhelming.

WRITES OF MINES IN INTERIOR

Interesting Article by A. G. Langley, Mining Engineer

When enveloped in fog, slush and rain in Vancouver, one is prone to visualize conditions in the far north as being many times worse, says A. G. Langley, M.E., in a review of central interior mining. So when leaving Vancouver for a visit to the Babine Bonanza mine, it was a pleasant surprise to encounter bright sunshine all the way to Prince Rupert.

It was even more surprising to find Telkwa, on the Canadian National, free from snow and the weather mild. However, knowing that sudden changes are to be expected in northern latitudes, we prepared for the overland trip to the Babine Bonanza by outfitting with the customary winter apparel of the north.

The ride to the property is through timber practically all the way and it is not until the mine is reached, above the timber-line, that a good view of the surrounding country can be had. A magnificent panorama meets the eye as one scans the vast expanse of undulating and closely timbered country in which numerous lakes mark the central portions of wide valleys over which the snow-capped summits of the Babine Range stand out in bold relief.

Scope For Prospector

It leaves a lot to the imagination as to the wealth of mineral that these mountains may contain, for surely they cannot have been intensively prospected. The great distances have probably confined the activities of the prospector, during the short season at his disposal, to the more easily accessible points near the railway.

Nevertheless, numerous prospects have been staked, but only a few have been developed to the point at which a definite conclusion can be arrived at as to possibilities, while many still await capital for further prospecting.

The people of the district appear to be very optimistic regarding the possibilities of the mining industry and nearly all have interests in properties. There are said to be some very promising showings at no great distance from Telkwa River, while the country surrounding the headwaters of the Telkwa River is highly spoken of.

Winter in the Bulkley Valley is said to be moderate with the exception of an occasional severe cold spell, while the snowfall is so light that motor cars are used throughout the entire year.

Telkwa Convenient

The small settlement of Telkwa is delightfully situated on the Bulkley River and at a convenient distance from the Telkwa coal mine from which coal is supplied at reasonable rates. Smithers, some 12 miles distant, is the metropolis of the district, and although not visited by the writer, is known as a thriving and prosperous town.

Near Smithers the Duthie mine is producing steadily, and recent reports are satisfactory as to results and future prospects.

The Babine Bonanza mine may be briefly described as a promising prospect in the advanced stage of development. The mine's possibilities of development are enhanced by the recent discovery of strong showings of higher grade ore than heretofore encountered and by the fact that operations are being directed by skilled technical management. It is understood that the company intends to take advantage of the present period of low metal prices to push development with a view to being prepared for production as soon as conditions improve.

Sport Chat

Though not a born hockey fan, T. Ross Mackay, well known resident of this city, is one of the keenest followers of the doings of the National Hockey League, because of the fact that he has a nephew, Norman Gainor of Calgary, and also a cousin namesake on the Boston Bruins' team which recently made a new record for consecutive number of wins. Norman Gainor, son of Mr. Mackay's oldest sister, is one of the flashy Bruins' forward liners. He is about 25 years of age and has been playing for the past two seasons as a big league hockey regular.

In 1929 50 American league players batted .300 or more. It is a curious coincidence that this is the third successive year that exactly 50 men have made this record. Of the 50 names, 15 were of players in their first or second season in fast company, which is an item of interest. The table is notable, also for certain names that are missing. It was the first American league year since 1905 in which the name of Tyrus Raymond Cobb did not appear among the select list of players hitting .300 or more. Eddie Collins and Tris Speaker are not listed for the first time since 1908. Lewis A. Fonseca, Cleveland first baseman, tops the regulars with a mark of .369. Brilliant Al Simmons is second with .365, 10 points above Henry Manush who has .355 and, in turn, is one point higher than Jimmy Foxx, 21-year-old veteran of the champion A's and Anthony Lazzeri, both of whom finished at .354. Last year Fonseca finished tenth and Simmons fourth, while Manush battled to the end of the 1928 season with Leon Goslin for the leadership, Goslin winning by one point with .379, 91 points higher than his present mark.

Though Fonseca won the leadership in batting the greatest all round player, in both batting and fielding, is Charles Gehringer, Detroit second baseman. Gehringer finished eleventh among the regulars with an average of .329; played in the most games, 155; scored the most runs, 131; stole the most bases, 27; led in three base hits, 19; tied with his team mate Alexander for the most hits, 215; with another team mate, Roy Johnson and Manush, he tied in doubles with 45 and though he occupied an unfavorable position in the batting order he drove in 106 runs. Earl Combs hit 151 singles, George H. Ruth accounted for 46 home runs, Joe Newell led in sacrifices with 41 and tied his own world's record by striking out but four times in 152 games. Roy Johnson, young Detroit outfielder was at bat 640 times.

Though no new records were made, sterling individual performances were sprinkled through the season of which a few of the more interesting are listed below. Edmund Miller whose timely hit won the world series batted safely in 28 consecutive games from May 30 to June 27, inclusive. On May 24 Manush combed five hits in five times up from the offerings of Zinn, Cleveland pitcher, and two days later Gordon Cochrane duplicated this feat, with Marberry and Brazton the victims May 1, Simmons faced four Boston pitchers six times and collected five hits, one of them a homer and one a double, scored four runs and drove in six. On June 21 the A's star found Pennock, Sherid and Moore for five hits, two of them home runs, in five times at bat, scored five runs himself and drove in three more home. September 2, Joe Cronin, young Washington shortstop, hit a single, triple, two doubles and a home run off MacFayden and Dobens of Boston in five times at bat. Carl Reynolds, Chicago, Dale Alexander and McManus of Detroit also hit safely five times in five times at bat. In the matter of base running and sacrificing there was no change from the most recent conditions. Playing for runs in clusters is the popular method regardless of the batting strength of teams concerned. As long as that system is continued clever base running and smart bunting will remain at a discount.

BUCKS AND LIONS EVEN

Pacific Coast Hockey League Still Deadlocked as Result of Last Night's Games

VANCOUVER, Jan. 18.—The league-leading Vancouver Lions defeated the tail-end Victoria Cubs in the Pacific Coast Hockey League fixture here last night, but it took overtime for them to do it. Securing an early lead, the Cubs held it until the third period, when the locals evened the count, and then won in the extra session.

While the Lions were winning here, the Portland Buckaroos annexed their ninth straight victory by nosing out the Seattle Eskimos.

The Lions and Bucks are still deadlocked for the league leadership with the season half over.

Sick in Bed, He Got His Deer

Massachussets Man Shot Big Buck Through Window

CHARLEMONT, Mass., Jan. 18. — John Ellsworth, aged 68, was naturally disappointed when opening of the deer season found him sick in his bed. However, his condition showed a noticeable improvement when Mrs. Ellsworth tiptoed upstairs with a shotgun and told him a big buck deer was out in the yard. Ellsworth rested the shotgun on the window sill and brought the 200-pound buck down with one shot. Then he went back to bed.
